Apartment Complex May Be in the Future For Nursing Home

The Princeton Nursing Home on Quarry Street in the Borough's John-Witherspoon neighborhood may be on its way toward assuming its third identity. The red brick building served as the elementary school tor African-American children until 1948, when Princeton integrated its schools. It later became a nursing home. But this function will soon end because a replacement nursing home is under construction on Bunn Drive.

Now, if architect J. Robert Hillier's plans are approved, the building will become the site of 34 one- and two-bedroom apartments.

Mr. Hillier has a contract to purchase the building from its current owner, William Robertshaw, which is contingent on receiving zoning variances trom the Borough. If the variances aren't granted, he said, he will not buy the building.

Although Mr. Hillier will not market them as age-restricted units, all but three ot the apartments are on one level. All are handicapped-accessible and can be reached by elevator. The location is just a tew blocks from the downtown.

Mr. Hillier plans to establish a private foundation that will make a portion of the apartments more easily obtainable by residents of the John-Witherspoon neighborhood.

The toundation would cover the cost of the down payment for eligible purchasers. These are people who have lived in the John-Witherspoon neighborhood for at least ten years, or their descendents, and who fit into specific income guidelines.

The foundation would become an equity owner of the apartment, along with the purchaser, and would own 20 percent of the unit. It would have first refusal to buy back the unit at market price for resale to another eligible resident. About 25 percent ot the units would be under the foundation's umbrella.

Apartments would range from 660 to 1200 square feet and they would sell for as low as $150,000, said Mr. Hillier. The average selling price would be $200,000.

White Buffalo Firm to Return to Township

Township Committee members have unanimously approved e $150,000 contract with the White Buffalo wildlife management firm ol Hamden, Conn., the company that brought sharpshooters into town earlier this year, to "cull" deer trom Township locations. The bill for White Buffalo's tirst operation, during which the firm's representatives killed 322 deer, was $90,000.

Committee members also approved a revised deer management plan that allows White Buffalo to carry out its operations anytime between now and March 31. Both the contract and the revised plan are subject to state approval.

Both measures, also, were items on the Committee's consent agenda, which usually passes without public discussion.

During the public comment portion ot the meeting, resident Karen Cotton said a friend ot hers who lives on Brookstone Drive had been asked by animal Control Officer Mark Johnson whether White Buffalo could net deer on her property. Ms. Cotton asked what would be done with the deer that White Buffalo netted.

Township Attorney Edwin Schmierer responded that deer would be netted in certain erees too congested for the presence ot sharpshooters. He said the animels would be taken to a deer tarm in upstate New York.

Township Administrator James Pascale, however, amended that statement, noting that, in fact, the deer would bo "euthanized."

When Ms. Cotton asked tor a definition of "euthanize," Mr. Pescele said a bolt would be edministered to the door's hoad, similar to the kind ot bolt used in e sleughterhouso. Mayor Phyllis Marchand said the School District to Save $6 Million In Interest; Tax Impact Is Less

In May, at the time of the referendum lor school construction in Princeton, the estimated interest rate for the $81 million bond issue was 5.2 percent, to be paid over a 20-year period. The actual rate, as reported in last week's Town Topics, is 4.41 percent.

A grant of $17.8 million from the NJ Education Department, as well as a $500,000 donation from Princoton University, and $2.3 million from the district's doforred maintonanco budgot had already reduced tho total bonded amount to $60.94 million.

On November 1, the PRS Board ot Education approved tho purchese of bonds lrom a consortium headed by UBS Palne Weber Inc, tor the net interest rate of 4.41.

method was instantaneous and humane.

"I thought the justification for shooting was that it was humane," Ms. Cotton said. "I think this [new method] needs to be known by the town."

She said later that she could hardly believe the Township would consent to slaughterhouse methods on a wildlife population. "To say this is euthanizing the deer is an extreme misnomer," she insisted. "We should know exactly what we are paying for. I am shocked that this was done under a consent agenda [and discovered by accident]. This is a terrible way for an educated and affluent community to treat its wildlife."

Feeding Ordinance

In related action, the Committee introduced amendments to an ordinance passed last year that prohibits the "purposeful or knowing" feeding of deer. Mr. Godfrey opposed the measure; and Committeeman William Enslin abstained.

Several citations issued under the existing ordinance were eventually dismissed by the prosecutor because the measure was new, untested, and somewhat unclear.

The original ordinance, part of the Township's overall deer management plan, stated that "the feeding of deer has been shown to increase the concentration of deer in the area of feeding, thereby increasing the likelihood of deer/car collisions in the vicinity, increasing the local number of nymphal deer ticks, and increasing damage to vegetation and landscaping nearby..."

The amended ordinance clearly defines "feeding." It declares, "It shall be presumed that the person is purposely or knowingly feeding deer unless the feed is placed on a platform that is raised at least four feet off the ground or is placed in a feeder whose opening is sufficiently restricted so as to prevent deer from accessing the feed."

Mr. Enslin said he supported the intent and objectives of the measure, but he felt that enforcement would continue to be a problem. Rather than make deer-feeding a crime, he said, he would like to see another approach. He pointed out that relatively few violations of the ordinance had occurred.

"Wild animals are not meant to be fed. This ordinance supports the health of wild animals," argued Mayor Marchand, citing the Humane Society's position on feeding wild life.

Deputy Mayor Steve Frakt asked Mr. Enslin whether he would like to repeal the original ordinance, to which Mr. Enslin responded he would prefer to resolve the situation by some means other than "dragging people into court."

Mr. Godfrey maintained that he did not like the ordinance when it was first introduced because of the enforcement problem. "We will have endless wrangling," he predicted.

"It will be easier to convince people to stop feeding the deer if we have an underlying ordinance," Mr. Frakt argued. "It sets a standard. It is just a statement of principle on which to run the deer management program."

Mayor Marchand, who has long declared her willingness to try every method of deer control available, including immunocontraception, said the prohibition on feeding was just one of the measures necessary to resolve the issue of too many deer. She added that people who live near deer-feeding stations have called her to complain.

When it came time for public comment, Frank Wiener, Loomis Court, raised the issue of helicopter surveillance to insure compliance with the original ordinance. Several residents cited earlier this year for violation charged that a helicopter flew over their property prior to their summonses.

Mr. Schmierer said that helicopters had been used to check the location of White Buffalo's own bait sites. Mr. Pascale noted that there were two purposes: to count the deer; and "to see if people were feeding the deer."

Mayor Marchand said that after White Buffalo had established bait sites, it found the deer were not using them. In order to ascertain whether the Township's information on where the deer were located was accurate, it utilized the helicopters, she said.

Senior Housing Overlay Ordinance Is Referred Back to the Township

After listening to more than six hours of testimony that took place over two meetings, the Planning Board last Wednesday night took the next step in Princeton Township's consideration of a senior housing overlay ordinance.

The board referred the ordinance back to Township Committee with several recommendations for change. It is now up to Township Committee to act on the ordinance and, if it is approved, send it back to the Planning Board. The board would then determine if the provisions of the ordinance were consistent with its recommendations.

The Township's proposed ordinance would permit age-restricted housing for persons 62 and over in three overlay zones. The Planning Board recommended that the habitable space in a structure built in such a zone be no higher than 35 feet; that there be a 2-1 setback-to-height ratio; that the number of units contained in each building range from 24 to 30; that the unit size range from 1200 to 1400 square feet; and that the number of units in each development be fewer than 200.

TOPICS
Of the Town

The board also recommended that the ordinance not require the provision of community space. But it supported the provision that at least 40 percent of the tract be devoted to common open space.

The senior overlay zones identified in the ordinance are Mt. Lucas Road at the Montgomery border; Route 206 and Mt. Lucas Road; and Bunn Drive. All are located on the environmentally sensitive Princeton Ridge.

At the Planning Board's first meeting to discuss the ordinance, held October 18, many speakers urged that the Princeton Ridge be spared such development, A representative of the Joint Environmental Commission said the commission opposed the senior overlays. Last week, another representative of the commission affirmed this position.

Most of the speakers on October 18 spoke against the ordinance. The opposite was true last Wednesday, when speaker after speaker stressed the need for senior housing.

Eleanor Angoff, representing the Princeton Coalition for Senior Housing, said an ordinance allowing a large number of units was an appropriate step.

Other speakers noted that one in four Princeton residents is a senior, and that they want to remain in Princeton but move to homes that are easier to manage. Others said that seniors have contributed to the community and want to stay.

"Princeton would be a major loser if we had to leave, We provide much needed school tax revenue without bringing kids into the system," said Dodds Lane resident Walter Emmerich.

Flora Davis, of Erdman Avenue, said she loved Princeton and had bought gravesites in Princeton Cemetery. "We know we'll end up back here, but there aren't many options to remain."

Princeton Township Soon Will Test Emergency Community Alert Network

The Township will test its new emergency telephone alert system in selected areas during the next few weeks. The system can be activated to provide emergency notification to all Township residents; or it can be directed to a specific area of the municipality that may be affected.

The test messages will begin with the words, "This is a message from the Princeton Township office of emergency management." Residents will then be told that the message, which will last less than 15 seconds, is only a test.

According to Ted Cashel, emergency management coordinator, the system can forward 13,000 to 15,000 phone calls in one hour.

The system was purchased from the Community Alert Network in Albany, for an initial start-up cost of $15,600. It will be updated every year, Mr. Cashel said, in a briefing to Township Committee members on November 12.

Residents and business owners may opt out of the notification system at any time; and residents with unlisted numbers will not be called unless they have provided their numbers to the office of emergency management. Those who have left the system may also return if they choose, Mr. Cashel said.

Residents and businesses that change their numbers are asked to forward the new information to the office of emergency management. "It is easy to maintain the list," Mr. Cashel stated.

Committeeman Leonard Godfrey suggested that the communication network could easily be interrupted in an emergency; but Mr. Cashel said that even if the main electrical systems go down, the emergency alert network, which runs on very low voltage, would continue to operate.

"Cordless phones and cell phones, on the other hand, may not function," he said. "If you lose house power, you will lose your cordless phone; every household should have at least one hard wire phone."

The emergency management coordinator noted that information would also be broadcast on TV Channel 30A, and that it would be on the Township's website, but added, "We don't want to rely on e-mail, because many people still do not have it."

The system will be fully operational as soon as all tests are completed, he indicated.

The Township purchased the system several months ago, well before the events of September 11. The municipality had originally budgeted $33,000 for a hardware upgrade.

The need for such a system became critically apparent in 2000, following Hurricane Floyd, when there was a delay in informing residents about the need to boil drinking water.

Mr. Cashel said he pointed out that hardware would be obsolete before the new municipal building was complete.

The lower-cost computerized mapping system utilizes software, rather than hardware. Following the initial start-up costs, the annual expense will be $6,700, Mr. Cashel said.

Residents who would like more information, or are concerned that the office of emergency management does not have their correct numbers, are invited to call 921-8020.

Community Open House For Habitat on Saturday

Habitat for Humanity - Princeton Project — a community, volunteer, and affordable housing initiative will welcome the public to an open house on Saturday, November 17, at 10 a.m. to see the progress on its house at 52 Leigh Avenue.

Habitat volunteers are rehabilitating a house that will become homes for two partner families sometime next year.

Habitat for Humanity International, founded in 1976 in Georgia, is a nonprofit charitable organization that works in partnership with financially needy families to build and renovate affordable housing.

Habitat has made its mark in more than 1,200 communities throughout the world — including the two Princetons.

In 1996 Habitat Princeton embarked upon its first project at 29 Lytle Street in Princeton Borough, and now is in the midst of the renovation on Leigh Avenue in Princeton Township.

For information about volunteering for the Princeton Project or making a donation, call 252-9292.

Senior Housing

senior housing complex. Josh Weiner, senior vice president, said it was important to have 200 units because of the need for people to populate the functions and activities offered at a clubhouse. "It is typical that a project of this size have a card room and exercise room as well," he said.

"Forget it," said a man sitting in the audience.

Township Mayor Phyllis Marchand said there were many facilities available to seniors in the Princeton community, including a pool. She said she envisioned life in a senior complex as similar to life in an apartment house in New York City, where people go out, go to the theater, go out to exercise. "I would like units for seniors not to use up land for things being offered in the community," she said.

> "Seniors are willing to give on some of the amenities to make the project fit in as a good neighbor,"

Mr. Weiner told the Planning Board that banks will not finance a senior project that doesn't include a clubhouse.

"We have to be sensitive. Seniors are willing to give on some of the amenities to make the project fit in as a good neighbor," said Board member William Enslin. "It may be different in other communities."

Mayor Marvin Reed noted that fewer than 200 units would not be as profitable to the developer, but that it might produce a project that is more compatible with the neighborhood and more aceptable to the neighbors. "I am waiting to see if the ordinance comes back to us with less than 200 units," he said.

Science Lecture Series To Air on TV Channel 30

TV30 will broadcast the Princeton University Plasma Physics Laboratory 2001 "Science on Saturday" lecture series starting the week of November 19, according to Bernie Miller, chair of the Joint Princeton Cable TV Committee.

TV30 is the Princeton community public access channel, and can be found at Channel 30A on the RCN Princeton cable TV system.

The Science on Saturday lectures are geared towards high school students. Topics are selected from the forefront of research in a variety of disciplines. The lectures are given by scientists, mathematicians and other professionals involved in cutting-edge research.

The lectures were originally given at the Princeton University Plasma Physics Laboratory on the James Forrestal Campus of Princeton University during January, February and March 2001.

The lectures to be broadcast are: week of November 19: "The Discovery of the Binary Pulsar" by Dr. Russell Hulse, 1993 Nobel Prize winner in Physics, Princeton Plasma Physics Laboratory.

Week of November 26: "Plasma Rockets for Future Space Missions," by Dr. Yevgeny Raites, Plasma Science and Technology, Princeton Plasma Physics Laboratory.

Week of December 3: "Fanciful Fliers - A Different Approach to Small Aircraft Design," by David A. Cylinder, Plasma Science and Technology, Princeton Plasma Physics Laboratory.

Week of December 10: "Exploiting the Genomics Revolution for the Discovery of New Medicines," by Dr. F. Raymond Salemme, 3-D Pharmaceuticals, Exton, Pa.

Week of December 17: "The Use of Electro-Cardiography in Diagnosing Heart Disease," by Dr. Andrew Costin, Princeton Medical Group, Adjunct Faculty, Hospital of the University of Pennsylvania.

Mr. Miller thanks Princeton University and the Plasma Physics Laboratory for making the lectures available to the Princeton community, and suggests that interested viewers should check the TV30 bulletin board at Channel 30A, or the TV30 web site at www.princetontv.org for the dates and times of the lectures.

Liver Transplant Service Opens at Medical Center

The Medical Center at Princeton has established a Liver Transplant Evaluation and Management Service to provide screenings and treatment for patients with end-stage liver disease who may need liver transplants.

The Service also provides follow-up treatment for patients who have already received liver transplants.

Currently, 18,419 people in the U.S. are awaiting liver transplants — 135 of them are New Jersey residents. Patients evaluated at the Medical Center have their transplant surgeries performed at University Hospital in Newark, which has one of only two liver transplant programs in the state of New Jersey. Last year, 74 liver transplants were performed at University Hospital.

Recent improvements in anti-rejection medications have helped to improve transplant patients' quality of life and increase their life expectancy.

The Satellite Service at The Medical Center is directed by Baburao Koneru, chief of Transplant Surgery at University Hospital; Gary Forester, a board certified gastroenterologist on staff at the Medical Center at Princeton, and associate professor of medicine in the Division of Gastroenterology at UMDNY-Robert Wood Johnson Medical School; and Transplant Coordinator Malik Cobb.

For more information on the Liver Transplant Satellite Service at the Medical Center, call 497-4301. For information about organ donation, or to request a donor card, call the Sharing Network, at 1-800-SHARE-NJ.

Area Couple Hosts Eden's Fall Field Day

John and Alice Pakenham of Skillman recently hosted Eden Institute's annual Fall Field Day at their property, the former Gallup estate located on The Great Road.

As the education division of the Eden Family of Services, which provides lifespan services for children and adults with autism, the Eden Institute annually designates a day in October where its students have the opportunity to participate in outdoor Fall activities.

For the occasion, the Pakenhams decorated their property with ghosts, scarecrows, and a haunted maze featuring characters from "Where the Wild Things Are." They also arranged a pumpkin patch and hayride with live music, as well as several pigs and chickens for the children to enjoy.

The animals were on loan from BASF Corporation's Agro Research Center in Princeton, which also donated bales of hay for the event.

Many Eden parents, as well as several friends of the Pakenhams, volunteered to help out with the day's activities, which also included square dancing, pumpkin painting, decorating trick-or-treat bags and listening to Halloween tales by storytellers Marilyn Fisher, from Hickory Corner Library in East Windsor, and the Pakenhams' son-in-law, Robert Ams.

Among the organizers of the Field Day event were Pakenham friends Sue and Tony Trombino, and several members of the Eden Institute faculty, led by Cindy Bregenzer, coordinator of Eden's middle childhood program. The day concluded with a delicious catered lunch sponsored by Ms. Bregenzer's parents, Dave and Vera Lanning, and a group sing-a-long.

Alice Pakenham, a relatively new friend to Eden and member of the steering committee for Eden's annual Fall fundraiser, Eden Evening on the Town, offered her property for the school's annual festivities. She enlisted husband Jack, who displayed his tractor-driving expertise at the event by hauling two wagons filled with hay, children, parents and musicians for several 20-minute hayrides around the property.

Peter Lewis Gift Will Support Gehry-Designed Campus Library

Peter B. Lewis, a member of the Princeton Class of 1955 and a trustee of the University, is making a gift of $60 million to support the construction and the programs of a new science library at Princeton that will be designed by the internationally acclaimed architect Frank Gehry.

The library is expected to be located near the corner of Ivy Lane and Washington Road, with a connection to the existing math-physics library in Fine Hall.

The announcement of the gift and the selection of Gehry were made by the trustees at their meeting this past weekend.

"This is a very significant project for Princeton in two respects," said President Shirley M. Tilghman. "It allows us to create library space for the sciences that is designed to meet the needs of the 21st century, and it allows us to bring to our campus the work of one of the most original and distinctive architects of our time.

"We are deeply grateful to Peter Lewis for making it possible for us to achieve both of these goals, just as he made it possible through his earlier gift for us to make major advances in the field of genomics."

In 2000, Mr. Lewis presented the University with a gift of $55 million, part of which established the Lewis-Sigler Institute for Integrative Genomics. The building to house the institute is currently under construction across Washington Road and just south of the proposed science library site.

Mr. Lewis is chairman of the board of the Progressive Corp., one of the nation's largest auto insurers, and is also a long-time patron of the arts.

He helped establish the Cleveland Center for Contemporary Art and chairs the board of trustees of the Guggenheim Foundation in New York. In this latter capacity he worked with Frank Gehry, who designed the Guggenheim museum in Bilbao, Spain, a masterwork that opened in 1997 to worldwide acclaim.

Mr. Gehry, whose work often features bold, curved shapes that seem to defy the physical limitations of ordinary building materials, founded his architectural firm in 1962. In 1989, he received the Pritzker Prize, the highest award in architecture, and in 1999 he received the American Institute of Architects Gold Medal.

His current work includes several academic buildings, including the Peter B. Lewis building for the Weatherhead School of Management at Case Western Reserve University. Construction is also under way for the Stata Center, a building designed by him at the Massachusetts Institute of Technology.

In addition, he recently has been commissioned to design a new wing for the Corcoran Museum in Washington, D.C.

The new science library is expected to serve researchers working on projects that cross scientific fields, provide services and facilities that take into account the revolutionary changes in scholarly publishing over recent years, and meet the needs of students far better than the current patchwork of small, discipline-specific libraries where seating tends to be tight and tucked away in corners.

According to University Librarian Karin Trainer, "Our experience with the renovated Firestone Trustee Reading Room shows that undergraduates are drawn to study in places with ample, contiguous seating and where it is easy to use a computer and to connect to the campus network.

"Our experience at the Stokes Library shows that we need to have classrooms where librarians can teach students how to find the latest information in their fields of study. From the new library at the Friend Center we know that undergraduates need rooms where they can gather to work in small groups.

"We expect to have all of these things in the new building, as well as a center from which we will run an electronic delivery service for faculty. We will also move our increasingly popular Digital Map and Geospatial Information Center from its current location in Guyot Hall to the new building."

HEADLIGHT DESIGNER: Charlotte Zaininger, 5, of Hopewell, was in charge of constructing the headlights for the strange vehicle, called a Trav-a-mazoom. Faulty Connector Causes Fire at John Witherspoon

Township police responded to a fire alarm at the John Witherspoon Middle School on Walnut Lane Saturday night. Upon arrival, patrol officers observed a light fixture under a stairwell that was burning.

Police forced entry to the building and extinguished the flames with a fire extinguisher. Damage was confined to the immediate area. Police said the fire was caused by a faulty connector in the fixture.

Three juvenile male Princeton High School students, all from Cranbury, approached a 63-year-old man on Nassau Street and gave him cash to purchase alcoholic beverages for them on November 7. The adult, identified as Robert Bancroft (no known address), purchased various items of beer and liquor for the teens.

Bancroft was arrested by Borough police and charged with supplying alcoholic beverages to a minor, while the juveniles were arrested and charged with juvenile delinquency possession of alcoholic beverages.

Borough police responded to Prospect Avenue on Thursday after receiving a complaint that loud noise was coming from the area of the eating clubs there. Police found loud music coming from both the Cottage Club (loud band) and the Cap and Gown Club (loud stereo) when they arrived.

Both clubs turned their music down at the request of the police but both were issued Borough ordinance violations.

Two Princeton University students were victims of a burglary and theft that occurred between 1 and 2:40 p.m. on November 7.

Police said someone entered the students' unlocked Walker Hall dormitory room and stole a Compaq Presario series 1700 laptop computer, valued at $2,000, an IBM Thinkpad model 1400/1500 laptop computer, valued at $2,000, $50 cash, approximately 120 music CD's in storage cases with a combined value of $2400, and a $160 Olympus Stylus camera.

Johnson Ferry House To Host Harvest Feast

An ongoing demonstration of 18th-century foodways and hearth cooking will take place on Saturday, November 17, from 11 to 4, at the Johnson Ferry House in Washington Crossing Park, on the New Jersey side.

Recipes of Colonial America will be prepared by foodways interpreters in period clothing, creating an atmosphere reminiscent of life two and a half centuries ago.

The colonial Harvest Feast was a distinct event that has been incorporated as the main feature of the Thanksgiving holiday.

Together with this ancient Harvest Festival, Forefather's Day, commemorating the Pilgrims' landing; and religious observances of prayer and thanksgiving combine in the contemporary national holiday.

Sept. 11 Impact on Arts Considered at University

Two sessions exploring the effect of the September 11 terrorist attacks and the subsequent U.S. military action in Afghanistan on the arts and humanities are scheduled for Friday, November 16 at Princeton Univerity.

The panel discussions, titled "Terrorism and War, the Arts and the Humanities: A Conversation in the Aftermath of September 11," will run from 2:30 to 6 p.m. in McCormick 101 on campus. They are sponsored by the Council of the Humanities.

The first sesision will focus on how September 11 and its aftermath challenge, alter, limit and/or define the work of the academy. Panelists will discuss what kind of responsibilities such events place upon faculty members as teachers, writers and public intellectuals.

Speakers will be Judith Butler, professor of rhetoric at the University of California-Berkeley, and Princeton faculty mebmers Gyan Prakash, professor of history, and Michael Wood, chair of the English department. The moderator will be Karen Beckman, lecturer in English.

In the second session, which will begin at about 4:30 p.m., panelists will explore if and how recent events have shifted the frame of their practice in terms of subject and style or context and reception.

Speakers will be Princeton faculty members Eduarda Cadava, associate professor of English; Laura Kurgan, assistant professor of architecture; and Lynne Tillman, lecturer in the Council of the Humanities and creative writing.

The moderator will be Hal Foster, the Townsend Martin, Class of 1971, Professor of Art and Archaeology.

Local Barbershop Chorus Seeks to Add Members

The Princeton Garden Statesmen, a barbershop chorus, is seeking men who love to sing. The group, which rehearses every Tuesday evening at 7:30, is looking for at least 10 more members, to increase the size from 30 to 40 men. There are only two requirements: being able to carry a tune and a strong desire to perform (with the group) before audiences.

Age is not a factor, nor is the ability to read music. Many members of the Princeton group do not read music.

The Garden Statesmen will perform on December 7 and 8. Part of the program will feature Christmas carols; and new members may qualify to sing these familiar songs with the chorus.

Two Local Men Accused Of Driving Stolen Cars

Two Redding Circle men were arrested last week and charged with receiving stolen property.

20-year-old Alonzo O. Green was arrested on Friday after investigation revealed that he was driving a stolen 2001 Chevrolet Lumina which had been stopped for speeding on November 7. At that time Green fled on foot into the woods prior to police contact. Det. Cpl. Scott Porreca subsequently located and arrested Green.

In a related case, 22-year-old Christopher Randall was arrested after police recovered a stolen 2002 Buick Century at the Princeton Shopping Center on Thursday. Investigation by Det. Cpl. Art Villaruz determined that Randall was the operator of the vehicle in question. Police said other individuals have been implicated with the vehicle, and the investigation is on-going.

Green and Randall were both served with criminal complaints and released on their own recognizance. The value of the 2001 Chevrolet was listed at $18,000, while the 2002 Buick was listed at $24,000.

FIRST OF OCTEMBER: Jessica Rhoades read from the children's book Please Try to Remember the First of Octember, at the Cotsen Children's Library, on Saturday, November 10. Following Ms. Rhoades' reading of the Dr. Seuss book, children designed and built a "Trav-a-ma-zoom," described by Dr. Seuss as a "picklepowered, magical mobile."

Book to Be Published On Recognition Walk

The Spirit of Princeton is publishing a book about the 20th Century Recognition Walk entitled Bricks and Mortals.

Herb Hobler, treasurer of the Spirit and creator of the brick walk and the book, said, "So many people call asking for the whereabouts of their brick, and that of friends. That prompted us to create an alphabetical listing and location of the 2500 named bricks. However, there was so much fascinating information on the subscription forms that we decided to write a book about many 20th-century Princeton citizens who have names on bricks."

The 72-page book, expected to be available at the end of November in time for Christmas, will feature 16 pages of photographs of the entire walk, the alphabetical and location list, selected biographies or interesting stories about 325 people, names and street addresses of 130 no longer existing retail establishments noted on red bricks, the names of service dates of 51 mayors of Princeton Township and Borough, the eight governors who lived in Princeton and six University presidents, and some 30 current retail boosters who also have bricks.

"There were so much fascinating stories found on the forms about Einstein, Jimmy Stewart, three Presidents of the United States, great athletes from Hobey Baker to Bill Bradley, Nobel Prize winners, as well as human interest stories about local citizens who served the community in the Fire Department or community boards or who, like wheelchair-bound Sonny Perrine, were well known to so many.

It should be a treasure book not only for those who bought bricks but as an interesting 20th century passing parade of Princeton," said Mr. Hobler.

The proceeds of the book will go to the endowment of the Spirit of Princeton to underwrite annual costs of the Memorial Day Parade and the July fireworks as well as other patriotic events.

The $12 book will be available after November 26 at the University Store, Micawber, the Nassau Inn, the Princeton Historical Society, and at the Spirit of Princeton offices, 40 North Tulane Street (921-3800).

"Cool Women" Poets To Read in New Hope

Members of "Cool Women," a leaderless poetry critique group composed of seven women, will read from their work on Friday, November 16, at 7:30, at the Beaver Pond Poetry Forum, St. Phillip's Chapel, Route 32 and Chapel Road, New Hope, Pa.

The poetry performance group's theme will be "The Gift of Poetry."

The poets, all area residents, formed Cool Women about six years ago to share their work with one another. They have been reading together publicly for three years, and in 2000, published an anthology, Cool Women Volume One. Volume II is already in the works.

The first performance of Cool Women was a Valentine's Day program called "Hot Poems by Cool Women" at Micawber Books; the "Cool Women" appellation stuck.

Members of the group include Eloise Bruce, Carolyn Foote Edelmann, Lois Marie Harrod, Betty Bonham Lies, Joyce Greenberg Lott, Judith Michaels, and Penelope Scambly Schott.

Signed copies of Cool Women Volume One will be available at the reading for $10; they are also available from Amazon.com. They may also be obtained by sending a $12 check to Betty Lies, P.O. Box 215, Rocky Hill 08553.

University Creates Planning Process For the Future

Princeton University President Shirley Tilghman has created a planning process to implement the recommendations of the Wythes Committee adopted by the Board of Trustees in 2000.

She has charged four task forces with laying the groundwork for the addition of 500 students to the undergraduate student body and the creation of a sixth residential college.

The four areas are: facilities planning, administrative staffing and services, academic planning, and budget planning.

"Our goal is to allow the University to derive full benefit from a large student body while providing all students with a Princeton experience that equals or exceeds today's," Pres. Tilghman said. "That challenge requires that we plan for the increase with great care."

A coordinating committee, chaired by Vice President and Secretary Thomas Wright, will oversee the work of the four task forces. Other members will be: Provost Amy Gutmann; Vice President for Campus Life Janet Dickerson, Dean of the College Nancy Malkiel, and Treasurer Christopher McCrudden.

The facilities planning group will focus on the construction of a new residential college south of Dillon Gymnasium. "This is the first time in the history of the University that we will build a residential college from scratch, rather than assembling one with existing dormitories," Pres. Tilghman said.

The Administrative Staffing and Services task force will recommend how to meet the increase in demands on non-faculty staffing likely to occur as a result of the Wythes Committee proposals.

The Academic Planning task force will evaluate and develop plans for the staffing, curriculum and instructional infrastructure necessary to achieve the University's educational objectives in expanding the undergraduate student body; and to make recommendations concerning admission policy so that the additional places best support the broad educational mission of the University.

The Budget Planning group will evaluate and develop cost estimates for the operating and capital budgets, assessing how recent events may have changed the economic climate and influenced any prior assumptions about costs.

Richard R. Spies Named Executive VP at Brown University

Richard R. Spies, currently vice president for finance and administration at Princeton University, has been named executive vice president for planning and senior advisor to the president at Brown University, Ruth J. Simmons.

Dr. Spies will begin his duties January 15, 2002. He has been at Princeton for 30 years.

"At a time when the University is considering significant investments in its academic programs, it is imperative that short- and long-term planning be conducted thoughtfully and coherently," Pres. Ruth J. Simmons said. "Richard is superbly qualified to help lead Brown's efforts in clarifying goals, monitoring progress, assessing strategies and communicating about the needs, challenges and opportunities of planning."

Dr. Spies will serve in the Office of the President, assisting Simmons in providing oversight to senior officers and in coordinating their activities. His appointment provides the additional oversight and planning expertise which will be required to manage a significant capital investment in the University's academic programs.

Apartment Complex

Their design will be driven by the configuration of the building, he said, with each apartment placed within the confines of the building's two-foot brick walls.

Ceilings, which had been dropped to eight feet, will be restored to their original 11-foot height. Windows, too, will be brought back to their original longer dimensions.

Parking will be provided for 51 cars, five of them, for visitors, on green space. Additional landscaping will be planted in the parking lot, and a small park will be placed on Maclean Street, in the rear of the nursing home. Mr. Hillier also plans to grant easements to two residents of John Street who currently cannot access their back yards for parking.

The apartment house will be called The Waxwood, in honor of the late Howard B. Waxwood Jr., who was a principal in the Princeton School District for many years. He served as principal in the Quarry Street school when the district was integrated in 1948.

His wife, Susie Waxwood, was deeply involved in the integration in 1949 of the white and black branches of the Princeton YWCA.

Mayor Marvin Reed said Mr. Hillier's plan preserves both an historic building and helps to preserve the neighborhood. He added that he was pleased with the response of neighborhood residents at a meeting held recently by Mr. Hillier.

"They gave very good suggestions to him for designing it, and he has been very open to these suggestions," said Mayor Reed. "He will be able to work out a very good plan, and the neighborhood is pleased to keep the school as they knew it."

Mr. Hillier is currently negotiating with Borough Council about the number of affordable units he would provide in the nursing home. He believes his foundation plan meets part of his affordable housing obligation, but not all of it. In 1994, Princeton Borough approved an ordinance mandating that developers provide a 20 percent set aside for affordable housing.

Mr. Hillier's firm, The Hillier Group, is in the process of constructing 16 one-bedroom loft apartments on Moore Street. It is also the architect for the new public library and the expansion of the Princeton Regional Schools.

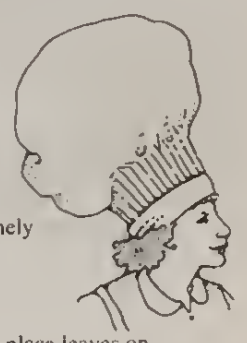
Artichoke Basil Parmesan Canapés

(serves 12 as an appetizer, approximate prep. time 35 minutes)



- ½ lb. grated Parmesan Reggiano cheese
- ¼ lb. grated extra sharp Cheddar cheese
- ¼ lb. grated Colby cheese
- ½ lb. soft sweet unsalted butter (two sticks)
- 1 (10 oz.) can drained artichoke hearts, chopped coarsely
- 2 cloves garlic, mashed
- Zest of one lemon, chopped finely
- Fresh ground pepper and Kosher or sea salt, to taste
- ½ cup fresh basil leaves, cut chiffonade style (rinse basil leaves and dry, place leaves on top of each other, roll lengthwise, and cut)
- ½ cup extra virgin olive oil
- 1 tbsp. garlic salt
- 1 French baguette, sliced every ½ inch, on diagonal

Preheat oven to 375 degrees

1. Combine olive oil and garlic salt and brush on each slice of baguette. Place baguettes on cookie sheet (oiled side up) in pre-heated oven and toast on one side, 2-3 minutes. Remove from oven and set aside.

2. Combine first eight ingredients in a Cuisinart or large mixing bowl until well mixed, and then add basil.

3. Spread cheese mixture on toasts, place on cookie sheet, and return to 350 degree oven for 5-7 minutes until cheese melts and is golden. Serve immediately.

Note: The cheese mixture can be done ahead of time, as can the toasts, the latter should be wrapped air tight. If making cheese mixture in advance, bring to room temperature before spreading.

Democrats to Sponsor Civil Liberties Discussion

The Princeton Community Democratic Organization (PCDO) and the Princeton University Democrats are inviting the public to "Civil Liberties after September 11th - A Discussion with Frederick P. Hitz" on Sunday evening, November 18, at 7:30 p.m. in Dodds Auditorium at the Woodrow Wilson School on the Princeton University campus.

The events of September 11th have raised a number of questions regarding the rights of Americans. One of the most important is: can treasured civil liberties survive in an age of terrorism?

Frederick P. Hitz is a former Inspector General of the Central Intelligence Agency (1990-1998) and is currently Lecturer in Public and International Affairs at the Woodrow Wilson School.

While the Woodrow Wilson School is under construction, Dodds Auditorium is still in use. Use the Prospect Avenue entrance.

For further information, please contact Andrew Koontz at 252-0264. More information about this event and other activities of the Princeton Community Democratic Organization (PCDO) are on the Web at www.princetondems.org.

Medical School Loans Available from Fund

The Dr. Joseph M. Blum Trust has funds to lend Jewish students from the Trenton area who are in need of help to pay their tuition at medical school. Preference will be given to students who have a parent who is a member of the Jewish War Veterans of Trenton. No interest is charged on the loans until (10) years after the recipient commences the practice of medicine, unless the loan recipient leaves school before graduation.

Realtor to Collect Toys For HomeFront Children

Welchert Realtors' Princeton Junction office will hold a toy drive for HomeFront, Mercer County's agency for homeless and disadvantaged children, on Saturday, November 24, and Saturday, December 1. Sales associates from the office will collect toys on those days, between 10 and 2, at Kay Bee Toys in the Quaker Bridge Mall, Lawrenceville. Toys will be delivered to homeless children in Mercer County for the holidays.

For more information, call Raz Sayed at 799-3500.

THE BEST THINGS IN LIFE really are free. TOWN TOPICS is delivered without charge to every home in Princeton Borough and Township and to part or all of West Windsor, Lawrence, Hopewell, Montgomery, South Brunswick and Franklin Townships, and Griggstown.

Palmer Square Hopes To Move Ahead With Condominiums

The construction of 97 housing units on Paul Robeson Place has been given a jump start by Palmer Square Management, which has authorized Architect J. Robert Hillier to proceed with working drawings. When complete, these will be submitted to the Borough Engineering Department as part of a request for building permits.

The 97 condominiums were part of an application for 114 units that was approved by the Regional Planning Board in 1988. Fourteen units were constructed on Hulfish North, but the remaining 97 have remained unbuilt.

Since 1998, Borough officials have been meeting with Palmer Square Management to try to work out the issue of affordable housing, which has been the major stumbling block in the construction of the units.

The Borough points to its 1994 ordinance which mandates that developers provide a 20 percent set-aside for affordable housing. This would equate to the provision of some 20 affordable units in the Paul Robeson Place complex, either on site or in another section of the Borough.

Henry Hill is the new attorney for Palmer Square, hired after the death of Thomas Jamieson. Mr. Hill said the set-aside ordinance did not apply to the approval of the 97 housing units.

Palmer Square wants the provision of affordable units to be based on a 1985 settlement agreement it made with the Witherspoon Jackson Development Corporation, a private group devoted to developing affordable housing. This settlement called for a contribution of $500 for each housing unit constructed.

Palmer Square's interpretation would cost it $48,500, while adherence to the Borough's position would cost it close to $2 million. The Borough has, however, shown itself to be willing to negotiate on the issue of affordable housing.

In April 1998, Palmer Square officials held a press conference to unveil a new plan for the Paul Robeson site that called for 60 townhouses and two commercial structures. They hoped that one of the structures would contain the new public library. But even if negotiations to move the library failed — which they did — they said the building would still be developed into office and retail space.

Since then, however, Palmer Square has reverted to its original plan of building 97 condominium units.

Mr. Hill met last Friday with Borough officials to continue negotiating the issues that divide Palmer Square and the municipality. Further meetings are planned, but none is scheduled.

Mayor Marvin Reed said he hopes the meetings will lead to a settlement of the issue. If no agreement is reached, he said, the working drawings would be deemed incomplete and a building permit would not be granted.

This could be challenged in court, Mayor Reed acknowledged. "But I think both parties are now at the point where they don't want discussions to fail."

Parents Are Invited to Attend Meeting Of Township Traffic Safety Committee

Children walking or biking to school in the area of Hamilton Avenue, Snowden Lane, and Rollingmead are having problems getting safely across the intersection. Last spring, concerned parents formed a committee — the Safe-Walk-to-School Committee — to campaign for a school crossing guard at the intersection.

Members of the group have been invited to attend the next meeting of the Township Traffic Safety Committee, on November 19, at 7, for a discussion of safety issues, including the possible installation of sidewalks along Rollingmead. All parents whose children are affected are invited to the meeting at Township Hall, Witherspoon Street and Valley Road.

Letter at Woodrow Wilson Tests Negative for Anthrax

Borough police reported that a suspicious substance found at Robertson Hall in the Woodrow Wilson School of Public and International Affairs on November 6 was not anthrax.

A 27-year-old female employee at the school received a suspicious letter on November 6 that made reference to anthrax. The letter was postmarked from Canada, and inside the envelope was an oily substance that was wrapped in plastic.

The Trenton Hazmat team removed the letter, and law enforcement authorities sent it for testing at a state laboratory. An enclosed office on the first floor was decontaminated, and was kept secure until test results were received.

Robertson Hall was closed from 11 a.m. until shortly after 2 p.m., with no one permitted to enter or leave the building. The ventilation system was turned off as another precaution, and the two staff members who handled the letter were offered antibiotics.

Gandhi Grandson Plans Talk on Terrorism

Arun Gandhi, grandson of Mohandas Gandhi, will lecture on "Terrorism, Nonviolence, and Justice" at 8 p.m., Monday, November 19 in McCosh 10 on the Princeton University campus.

Mr. Gandhi is the founder of the MK Gandhi Institute for Nonviolence, which he founded with his wife, Sunanda, in 1991 to promote and teach the philosophy and practice of nonviolence.

The institute, based at Christian Brothers University in Memphis, sponsors workshops, lectures, and community outreach programs in an effort to foster peace.

The lecture is presented by the Third World Center and is open to the public.

World Bank Official To Lecture on Gender

The World Bank's senior spokesperson on gender issues will present a lecture titled "Changing Policies and Strategies at the World Bank: The Example of Gender and Development" on Thursday, November 15.

Karen Mason, director of gender and development in the Poverty Reduction and Economic Management Network at the World Bank, will speak at 4:30 p.m. in Dodds Auditorium, Robertson Hall, Princeton University.

Gender and development is one of the four areas of focus in the World Bank network. Staff working in this area carry out a range of activities in support of the bank's objective of mainstreaming gender in operational, research and policy work.

The panel is sponsored by the Woodrow Wilson School of Public and International Affairs' Office of External Affairs.

"Comfort Woman" To Share Experiences

Keum-Ju Kwang, a Korean woman who was forced into sexual labor for Japanese soldiers in China during World War II, will discuss her experiences as a "comfort woman" at 7:30 p.m. Thursday, November 15, in McDonnell A10, Princeton University.

Her talk, titled "Lessons of Courage: Lost Innocence, Hidden Truth, Restored Honor," is sponsored by the politics department, history department, Humanities Council and East Asian studies program.

David Howell, associate professor of East Asian studies and history, will provide opening remarks.

Keum-Ju was forced into sexual slavery for four years. To this day, she suffers lingering physical and psychological effects from that experience. she told her story in the 1999 documentary film Silence Broken.

School Bonds

Tax impact figures were unavailable for last week's Town Topics, but have since been provided by PRS business administrator Stephanie Kennedy.

The total tax savings over the 20-year period comes to almost $6 million. In the Borough, the tax impact on a resident with a $300,000 home would be a total savings of $547 over the 20-year period. Total taxes paid will amount to $8,680. Tax savings in the first year would amount to $63; and the amount would gradually decline, until in 2022, the savings over the estimated amount would be only $4.

The annual tax bill in the Borough for the owner of a $300,000 home will average $434.

For the owner of a $450,000 home in the Borough, the total tax impact is $13,020 over the life of the bond, with an average savings of $41 each year, and an average annual tax of $651. Total taxes saved will amount to $829.

In the Township, the owner of a $300,000 home will save a total of $543 over the life of the bond, paying a total of $8,625 in taxes. The average annual savings over the original referendum estimate will be $27.

The owner of a $450,000 home in the Township will pay total taxes of $12,938 over the 20-year period, for a total savings of $815. Average annual savings will total $41; and the average annual tax will be $647.

In addition to presenting the lowest bid, Paine Weber gave the district a discount. The consortium is requiring repayment on bonds in the amount of $60.929 million, rather than the total of $60.944 million. The savings amounts to $15,000.

Andrea Kahn, representing the district's bond counsel, McManimon and Scotland, said the fact that the 30-year Treasury Bond was discontinued on October 31, combined with a general economic downturn, had caused the decline in interest rates.

Groundbreaking on school construction is expected to take place in the summer of 2002.

Renovation on the elementary schools will take place on two schools at once; and the first two will probably be started when construction on the high school and the John Witherspoon Middle School begins, PRS President Charlotte Bialek has said.

Danny Glover

Actor/Activist Glover To Discuss Death Penalty

Actor and activist Danny Glover will speak on "State Execution: The Death Penalty in America" at 8 p.m. Thursday, November 15, in McCosh 50 on the Princeton University campus.

His public lecture is being sponsored by Princeton University and the Mercer County chapters of Amnesty International.

He is expected to address a number of concerns about state execution, such as execution of the innocent, failure to act as a deterrent, and racial and socio-economic biases.

Mr. Glover has received wide recognition for his roles in more than 50 films, including the screen adaptations of Alice Walker's The Color Purple and Toni Morrison's Beloved; HBO's production of Mandela, for which he received a Cable ACE Award and an NAACP Image Award; and the action-thriller Lethal Weapon series.

He is a recipient of the Amnesty International USA Lifetime Achievement Award for his "efforts to bring worldwide attention to the human rights struggle."

Such efforts have included his role in the civil rights movement in Namibia, his work as Goodwill Ambassador for the United Nations Development Program and his commitment to abolition of the death penalty.

University Opens Series Of Lectures on Asia

"Democracy, Capitalism and the Crisis: Thailand after 1997" is the title of the inaugural talk of the Southeast Asia Lecture Series at Princeton University, set for Thursday, November 15.

Prof. Pasuk Phongpaichit of Chulalongkorn University in Thailand and Chris Baker, a freelance writer, will speak at 4:30 p.m. in 0044 Friend Center on campus.

Prof. Pasuk is a visiting lecturer at the School of Advanced and International Studies at Johns Hopkins University. She earned her Ph.D. from the University of Cambridge and has been awarded the title of senior national research scholar of Thailand.

Her work focuses on political economy, corruption, the sex industry and social movements.

Dr. Baker also earned his Ph.D. at the University of Cambridge, where he has taught Asian history and politics. He currently is working on a history of Thailand. He and Prof. Pasuk are the co-authors of Thailand: Economy and Politics (winner of the 1997 National Research Prize for the Thai version), Thailand's Boom and Bust and Thailand's Crisis.

The Southeast Asia Lecture Series will bring to campus academics and practitioners to discuss political developments in the region. The series is sponsored by the Center of International Studies, the Department of Politics, the Council on Regional Studies, the Southeast Asia Students Organization, Foreign Policy in Focus and the International center.

Chess Programs Flourish in Princeton Schools

When Princeton Charter School Chess Master Stefan Gerzadowicz announced his intention to leave the school last spring, the board of trustees scrambled to find a replacement for the popular teacher. "We put the word out in the chess community," Board President Peter Yianilos explained, "and in New York chess circles."

The Charter School has a mandatory chess curriculum for children in the first through the fifth grades. They study the subject once weekly for 45 minutes; and after-school play takes place on Tuesdays (advanced/intermediate), Wednesdays (beginners), and Thursdays (everyone). Chess is optional for students in grades 6 through 8.

"Research clearly shows that chess has a positive impact throughout the life of the child," Mr. Yianilos said, "and that it plays an important role in a child's education."

Sergey Kudrin, the replacement for "Mr. G," is an International Grand Chess Master, ranked 13th in the nation by the United States Chess Federation. One of the top 100 chess players in the world, he hopes to organize chess tournaments in Princeton in the near future. A number of parents — including Brooke Vleten and Lorraine Fichel — are also involved in coordinating plans for weekend tournaments.

"I don't think of the game as especially intellectual or elitist," commented Ms. Fichel, whose 9-year-old son Charlie Meyer has competed in several tournaments for elementary school age children. "It's just a good game for minds who naturally like to plan ahead."

"This is my main thing!" added Charlie.

In planning tournaments, the parents and Mr. Kudrin are assuming a role formerly filled by the Princeton Children's Chess Foundation. The group, which met regularly last year at the Charter School, was founded in 1993 for the purpose of encouraging the game among younger children.

The foundation was responsible, as well, for the creation of Knight Stalkers, an eight-week program in chess that took place at the Clay Street Learning Center last year.

"I have an M.B.A. and I used to work in a brokerage firm," Mr. Kudrin said this week, "but I like chess much better!" In addition to his three-day schedule at the Charter School, he gives private lessons, and continues to compete in international chess tournaments. His "Grand Master" ranking is the result of tournaments played in Switzerland, Great Britain, and Israel.

While the Charter School may be the only Princeton school in which chess is a mandatory part of the curriculum, the game is, nevertheless, taught in a number of other area classes.

At Princeton Day School, for example, Bonnie Waitzkin, the mother of Josh Waitzkin, child chess prodigy in the film Searching for Bobby Fischer, teaches chess to lower school children one day each week.

There is a chess club at the John Witherspoon Middle School; attorney Ginni Donati teaches chess to children at the Littlebrook School; and Princeton University freshman Ian Prevost teaches chess one hour weekly to any child at the Johnson Park School who wants to participate. He also tutors the game privately.

Chess is part of the extra-curricular program at Community Park and Riverside Schools, as well.

At the Princeton Academy of the Sacred Heart, chess is an integral part of the program in grades 5 through 7. Taught weekly last year, it now takes place only every two weeks. Playing, however, is not limited to classtime hours — or to older students.

"All the students play," according to Headmaster Olen Kalkus. "Students in third and fourth grade have talked their teachers into teaching them the game."

In addition to the value of chess to teach strategy and planning, Mr. Kalkus said, "If it just teaches students to slow down, it will be a wonderful thing. In chess, you win by slowing down.

"What amazes me," he continued, "is how once we introduced chess, it started to permeate through the whole school. Every evening after school, many of the children who have their homework done, take out their boards and start playing."

He is also a firm believer in the value of chess as a tool to understand other people, "because you have to get into their minds."

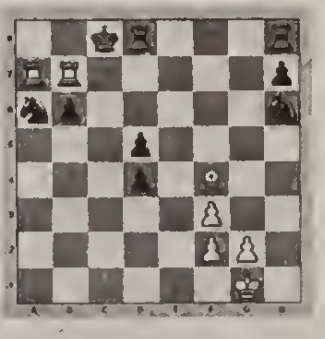
Chad Lieberman, the Princeton Day School student who wrote the accompanying Chess Forum for Town Topics, hopes to create a lively discussion about the game.

It is his opinion that chess in the schools is more prevalent among younger children than it is at the high school level; and that is a trend he hopes to challenge.

—Anne Rivera

CHESS MASTER: International Grand Master Sergey Kudrin plots strategy with three fifth grade chess players at the Princeton Charter School. They are, Joshua Gabai, Sergei Bernstein, and Noah Baum.

CHESSforum



Not since 1972 when American champion Robert James Fischer defeated Russian Boris Spassky has this 64-square board and dual army pastime been so popular.

Over the last two years, the United States Chess Federation (USCF) experienced a large percent increase in membership. This explosive growth can be explained in part by the captivation of the baby-boomer generation during the world-renowned '72 match, which placed the Americans in front of the Russians for the first time in chess history.

Those who experienced this event are now teaching chess to their sons and daughters. In New York City especially, the children in the public school system are learning chess through programs instituted by the board of education.

Chess In The Schools, a major organization founded by well-known chess teacher and National Master Bruce Pandolfini, is bringing chess to children in New York. Today, there are thousands of over the board (OTB) tournaments held countrywide annually. OTB is one section of tournament play under the rule of the USCF.

Correspondence, another type of tournament play in which a player is allotted 5 days to postmark his or her next move, allows players to compete against each other via the U.S. Postal Service. This week's article features the eighth game from the duel that pitted America vs. Russia.

CLUBS

The Washington Crossing Audubon Society will sponsor a trip to Shark River on Saturday, November 17, at 9. Co-sponsored by the Trenton Naturalist Club, the trip will be led by Mary Doscher.

Participants will have an opportunity to see migratory birds from northern climates that spend the winter in the warmer, open, and fish-filled waters of New Jersey.

For more information, call Lou Beck, at 737-0070.

On Monday, November 19, the Society will present an illustrated public lecture entitled "Birding in the Adirondacks: A Boreal Bonanza," in Stainton Hall on the campus of the Pennington School. Refreshments will be served at 7:30; the program will begin at 8.

Presenter Bill Barber, president of the West Chester Audubon Society, will talk about the birds, history, and ecology of the six-million acre (10,000-square-mile) Adirondacks Park in upstate New York.

While the program is designed for an audience of birders, the program will cover mammals, as well, and the topics of logging, tourism, greenlining, legislation, acid rain, and development problems.

Slides of various bird species will accompany the lecture and will be complemented with habitat slides on an adjacent screen in this two-projector presentation. Featured, as well, will be a display of posters, books, and other items related to the park.

Mr. Barber is active in the Birding Club of Delaware County, the Maryland Ornithological Society, and High Peaks Audubon. He leads spring birding and autumn hiking tours of the Adirondacks.

For more information,. call 730-8200, or contact the website: www.washingtoncrossingaudubon.org.

Geologist and Princeton University Professor Lincoln S. Hollister will discuss "Bhutan and The Rise and Fall of the Himalayas" at a meeting of 55PLUS, to take place at 10, on Thursday, November 15, at the Jewish Center of Princeton, 435 Nassau Street.

Dr. Hollister has been on the University faculty since 1968. He is the lead principal investigator of an eight-university project called "ACCRETE," sponsored by the National Science Foundation. In 1993 he led the first-ever geologic expedition to the kingdom of Bhutan, following this with two more expeditions in 1996 and 1999. He paid a subsequent visit to Bhutan in May of this year, to establish a seismic network there.

In his presentation, Dr. Hollister will describe the unique cultural and political aspects of working in Bhutan to discover how and when the Himalayas were formed. He will discuss why the mountains are still rising and how the processes of denudation or erosion impact on the climate.

The D&R Canal Watch will sponsor a walk along the canal in Lambertville, on Sunday, November 18, starting at 10. Walkers will meet at the Holcombe-Jimison Farm bridge and walk to the Lambertville Lock and back (three miles). This section is rich in canal structures, including two aqueducts, bridges, a basin, two canal houses, a lift lock and an outlet lock.

The part that the canal and railroad played in Lambertville's history, and the city's architectural heritage will be explored.

The public is invited, free of charge, to the walk, which should take about two hours. For more information, call 924-2683.

The Princeton chapter of the Daughters of the American Revolution will meet on Saturday, November 17, at the Nassau Club, 6 Mercer Street.

The meeting will begin with a luncheon and business meeting at 11:30, and will be followed by a program presented by Father Laurence Fish, of St. David's Episcopal Church, Cranbury.

Father Fish, the historian and genealogist for the Episcopal Diocese of Trenton, will discuss the importance of preserving church records.

Members of the community are invited. To make a luncheon reservation, call Helen Evatt, at 924-0872. DAR membership information may be obtained from Becky Wilson, regent, at 799-9614.

EVICTED? Pack your china in TOWN TOPICS

The Princeton Scrabble Club will meet at Borders Books, 601 Nassau Park, Building G, on Tuesday, November 20, and on November 27, at 7.

The club, which meets every Tuesday in the Café, welcomes new players. Registration is not necessary.

Ballroom Dancing Event Is Planned at University

A night of ballroom, Latin, and swing dance is being offered by the Princeton University Ballroom Dance Club.

It will take place Saturday, November 17, from 8 p.m. to midnight, in Dillon Gym on the University campus, and will feature a special performance with members of the Princeton Ballroom Dance Club.

Admission is $12; $5 with student ID. Formal attire is requested.

NAMI Thanks Donors, Announces Plans

At a recent press conference in Trenton, NAMI Mercer, the Mercer County affiliate of the National Alliance for the Mentally Ill, thanked five donors for their grants to the organization which provides support and education to the families of the mentally ill.

The organizatlon also announced plans for its future.

Among the donors was the Unitarian Universalist Congregation of Princeton, which provided an $850 grant to the organization.

Speaking at the press conference, the Rev. Paul Johnson said, "It makes eminent sense to deal with the problem of mental illness in our communities and is consistent with the mission of our congregation, which values the inherent dignity and worth of every person."

A $600 grant from NAMI New Jersey was unexpectedly doubled at the press conference.

"Our New Jersey affiliates work so hard. NAMI Mercer is a shining light among them," said Sylvia Axelrod, executive director of NAMI New Jersey, as she announced that the grant would total $1,200.

NAMI Mercer is based in Lawrenceville. The not-for-profit group counts about 1,000 dues-paying members. Other grants that it recently received included $2,500 from Public Service Electric & Gas; $10,000 from the Mercer County Department of Human Services; and a grant of $81,750 from the Robert Wood Johnson Foundation.

The funding will enable the group to expand its services to the families of mentally ill children and to hire an executive director and office manager. Both positions have been filled for the past six years by volunteers Chomy Garces and her husband Tom, who started the Mercer group.

At the press conference, also, Lorraine Saari, a counselor for the state-funded Intensive Family Support Services program and a NAMI volunteer, introduced a new NAMI project, "Visions for Tomorrow."

The eight-week education program will be offered free of charge to any caregiver or family member of a child or adolescent diagnosed with a brain disorder.

Teachers will be trained family members or caregivers who have, themselves, experienced the rewards and challenges of raising children with brain disorders.

Time for Us to Return to Optimism, And to Going About Nation's Business

To the Editor of Town Topics:

There will never be a moment that says it's now "safe" to return to optimism. It's like trying to establish when it's safe to invest in the stock market. Safety is a notion reserved only for those who are risk adverse. Leaders are comfortable with risk — they recognize optimism, with all the risk and opportunity that such an effort embraces. How do we return to optimism? "Business as usual" is one way, but a more judicious approach would be, "business under unusual circumstances, but business nevertheless."

This is a time of war, the likes of which we have not encountered in our history. This war of terrorism is more clearly a war of economics under the guise of religious righteousness. In this war the staging areas are our transportation centers, airports, bus terminals, rail systems, roadways, bridges and tunnels. The mission for us in this war is to travel to/from our cities and towns, purchase goods and services, and move the economy forward. The battlefield generals are you — our fearless consumers and our business and community leaders, who will lead the charge in order that others see and feel the optimism and follow you to fulfill the mission, and ultimately defeat terrorism.

The typical consumer during these times will be risk adverse and will "circle the wagons," hoarding assets and waiting for the next onslaught. This course of action will enable the terrorists, the enemy, to ultimately prevail. It is our duty, as leaders in the community, to "uncircle the wagons" and strike at the heart of the terrorists' war by going to restaurants, visiting museums, going to the theater, traveling to conferences, touring our cities and supporting our business and services in order that others follow suit. Now everyone is going to have to understand the impact of what "damn the torpedoes, full speed ahead" means.

Now is the time for optimism. A time to thwart terrorism. It is a time to move ahead, ever vigilant, yet resolved, to improve America's quality of life through the flow of our goods and services coursing through the transportation systems of our great nation. As for me, I have to catch a plane to Pittsburgh to speak before a conference on autism. You see, autism never sleeps, and I have a mission to accomplish.

Congratulations to PHS Girls' Soccer For Winning First-Ever Division Title

To the Editor of Town Topics:

The Princeton High girls' soccer team won its first ever division title. They not only won it but did so in such an overwhelming fashion that they all deserve our praise and admiration. The entire team fought through injuries and intense competition to finish first. I want to especially applaud the defense whose pictures and names are so rarely mentioned.

These girls are: Danielle DiMeglio, Val Davison, Amy Leedham, Genevieve Rubenstein, Sarajon Kerins, Megan Hayden, Melissa Carduner, Amanda Sustack, Kia Anderson and Samantha Doyle (goalie).

Let the stats that follow make you aware of their awesome accomplishments.

Record (as of November 5): 17-1-1 (best ever Princeton High Girls' Soccer Record). Shutouts: 13. Goals allowed: 8. Goals for: 53. These stats may not sell newspapers but they do win a division!

Congratulations to Cora Barros, Zoe Samack, and Danielle DiMeglio for being named to the Mercer 33.

Plans for Princeton Nursing Home Praised for Inclusion of Green Space

To the Editor of Town Topics:

I want to publicly praise and thank Robert Hillier for his proposal on converting the Princeton Nursing Home, formerly the Quarry Street School, to condominiums. His design is respectful of the architecture and history of the building; his approach to the community is warm and open.

I am especially grateful for his generosity in including a small public access park area on the Maclean Street end of the site. This is something I would see and appreciate every day of my life. But even if this piece of his plan did not come to pass, I strongly support his intention to include as much green space as possible and would encourage zoning approval for a variance if that was necessary, even at the expense of extra parking spaces.

No doubt problems will arise in the long process in approving this, or any, project; it is a complex and valuable undertaking. But at this point I am hopeful that something beautiful, useful, and even profitable (including taxes) will come to pass.

Township Committeewomen Elect Thank Their Friends and Supporters

To the Editor of Town Topics:

We wish to thank all of our wonderful friends and supporters who made it possible for us to win election to Princeton Township Committee.

With the world in a period of uncertainty and unease, it was a somewhat disconcerting time to run a campaign. Yet the people of Princeton were unfailingly encouraging, helpful, and intensely interested in the important issues being discussed. We were fortunate to be given coffees at which we could present our views, we were welcomed into peoples' homes as we walked in neighborhoods from one end of town to the other, and the needs of our campaign were sustained by contributions from hundreds of generous donors.

Now we look forward to ensuring that Princeton remains the vital, positive, and beautiful community we all love. There is much to be done. We will count on the continued support of our friends and neighbors as we work hard to serve you. A heartfelt thanks, again, to all.

Branch Libraries in Borough, Township Would Best Serve the Whole Community

To the Editor of Town Topics:

As the recent World Series demonstrated, it's not over until the last pitch is thrown. With the closing of the Princeton Public Library on November 4, we are entering a new era, and it appears that Princeton will be getting a grand new downtown building and parking lot that has been in the planning for almost 10 years.

This, despite the many letters to this newspaper and other community debate for consideration of other sites and other solutions that would more equitably serve the entire Princeton community. For the next two years the Library will function normally in the Princeton Shopping Center. We look forward to the convenience of freely parking our cars to get to the public library, to being able to combine a trip to the library with other shopping, and to being able to get to the library without becoming embroiled in downtown traffic.

The pleasure of this anticipation has led us to consider once again a practical solution to the library needs in Princeton: let there be two branches of the Public Library, downtown and at the Shopping Center. Think of the advantages. Princeton will still have the pride of a downtown library. But twice as many people will be able to get to their library on foot or by bicycle, especially young people and seniors. Those who need access to their library by car will actually be able to park, for free. It might even cut down on the current after school/rush hour downtown congestion.

Now that the contents of the downtown library will all be moved to the Shopping Center site, major needed renovations on the interior of the downtown library can be carried out, without any interruption of library services. Of course it will be necessary to duplicate some parts of the collection, but with the two branches two miles apart, it should be easy to coordinate efforts between the branches, and the cost of duplication will be a fraction of the $17 million price tag of the new project. As the current Township Hall debacle demonstrates, grandiose and expensive civic projects do not necessarily best serve the needs or desires of the community.

Finally, a few years ago, the Borough of Princeton defeated a proposal to consolidate the Borough and Township, despite the Township's passage of that proposal. Given the apparent desire of the Borough to maintain its separateness, it makes sense to have two smaller branches of the library, each serving the particular life style needs of our diverse Princeton community. The donors of the several millions for the library project could be individually polled to see whether they would support using their funds for renovation and establishment of a second branch instead of new construction.

Now that the library has taken the momentous step of leaving its current space, we are in the position to reconsider what is best for the entire community, rather than remain wedded to a 10-year-old proposal that is not necessarily in line with the current and future needs of our community.

Family Mentoring Program Provides Help In Parenting, Budgeting, Nutrition, Health

To the Editor of Town Topics:

On Sunday, October 7, Family & Children's Services of Central New Jersey's Family Mentor Program celebrated the continuing value of families helping other families at their annual Family Reunion Picnic in Cranbury's Village Park. The news that bombing in Afghanistan had just begun filtered through the adult attendees, underscoring the value of the program in helping fragile families cope in good times and bad.

As people throughout America adjust to the challenges of our post-9/11 era, the Family Mentor Program, which matches 80 families and mentors in Mercer and Middlesex counties, provides the stability and continuity of an extended family relationship and practical help in parenting, budgeting, nutrition, health and other issues of daily living.

Program director Roberta Tessler noted that participating families were in close contact after the attacks on America. "While focusing on how everyone is feeling and talking through their fears, our families are eager to find ways to pitch in and help those hurt in the attacks. They're also taking this time to appreciate the good in their own lives and count their blessings. That's always a good thing."

These efforts have not gone unnoticed: US Secretary of State Colin L. Powell wrote last fall in his role as Chairman of America's Promise, "I extend my sincere appreciation to the Family Mentor Program volunteers. I join your friends, family and the administration of Family and Children's Services in applauding your efforts to give back to the community through volunteer service. Your dedication to helping others is outstanding."

People interested in learning more about the Family Mentor Program, a cornerstone in Family and Children's Services's Center for Prevention Services, can contact program director Roberta Tessler, at 448-0056.

PRINCETON PERSONALITY

Princeton Attorney Susan Silver Is an Advocate for the People

CAMEL CARAVAN: "Our camel safari in India was a complete highlight. The boys got very attached to their camels, Buddha and Laloo. We were right up against the Pakistan border, and camped out under the stars." Susan Silver (foreground) follows two of her children as they trek across the Thar Desert.

Susan Remis Silver is an advocate: specifically as a lawyer, in her role as Chief Counsel to the New Jersey Office of the Public Defender and Director of Special Projects, and more generally, in a lifetime spent working on behalf of those frequently without help — the old, the impoverished, the incarcerated, the most disenfranchised.

"I always wanted to be involved in public interest work," recalls Ms. Silver, a member of the bar both in New Jersey and the District of Columbia. "Both of my parents are very compassionate people, and when I was growing up, I went to the Senior Citizen Association and talked with the people. I also went to the state hospital. I was concerned about the environment, and in college, I was active in the Sierra Club.

"I also worked at Storefront, an advocacy center on behalf of low income families, and I was a paralegal counselor, helping to advise individuals of rights under public assistance and housing laws. I realized that people who had problems often had to be referred to lawyers, and I ultimately went into law because I wanted to empower people who didn't have a voice."

A Princeton resident since 1984, Ms. Silver was born in Norristown, Pa. in 1957. She lived in Yardley for 13 years, and then moved to Poughkeepsie, N.Y. She attended high school, college, and law school in New York state, graduating from Cornell University with a bachelor of arts (a philosophy major) in 1978 and from New York University School of Law in 1982.

Vista Volunteer

Prior to attending law school, Ms. Silver took a year off, and as a Vista volunteer, went to Louisiana, where she was involved in the Louisiana Coalition on Jails and Prisons, conducting factual investigations to assist attorneys in prisoner rights and jail condition lawsuits. During this time, she also lobbied for the Equal Rights Amendment, and organized against police brutality and the death penalty.

"I also helped as a community organizer, establishing neighborhood organizations in low- and moderate-income areas," she adds. In addition, she worked with the Acorn Association, investigating illegal dumping in the Louisiana bayous.

After law school, she found her way to New Jersey. "I got a clerkship with Judge Dickinson R. Debevoise in the United States District Court, District of New Jersey, in Newark." she recalls. "I researched and prepared draft opinions on litigation pending before the U.S. District Court."

In 1983, Ms. Silver joined the New Jersey Department of the Public Advocate, Division of Public Interest Advocacy. She represented New Jersey residents in health and environmental protection, and advocated for low income individuals and the homeless.

Prisoners' Rights

Moving to the New Jersey Office of the Public Defender, she became Director of the Office of Inmate Advocacy in 1994, where for six years, she was responsible for the overall management of the office's legal and investigative work to protect prisoners' rights.

"I felt if I worked really hard, I could make a difference in the conditions of confinement," she explains. "I was also working on the training of prison officers. We were successful in closing dilapidated, unsafe housing, improving medical and mental health care, and affecting many other areas to ease jail and prison tensions. I enjoyed being able to improve the way jails were functioning, which can help generations to come."

Ms. Silver finds her current role as Chief Counsel to the Office of the Public Defender equally challenging and satisfying. "I do litigation, and as the lawyer for the public defender, I represent the office itself. I just argued a case representing the law guardian in a children's abuse and neglect case. What is the law guardian's role if a child's wishes and interests are different. For example, if the child wants to return to the abusive household? These are not easy issues."

She points out other legal ethical dilemmas in which she is involved. "For instance, if an attorney knows his client may commit another crime, is he obligated to reveal it? Where does attorney-client privilege come down in this situation?"

Love of the Law

Ms. Silver is also Director of Special Projects, and in this position, she says, "What is dearest to me is a pilot project to have social workers work together with attorneys handling juvenile cases. So we can get kids into treatment programs or get assistance for the whole family. This is already set up in Camden and Monmouth counties."

Despite her love of the law, Ms. Silver's life does not revolve exclusively around her work. Married with three children, she is an involved wife and mother, as well as an active community participant and passionate traveler.

"I met my husband, Lee, here in Princeton in 1984," she recalls, smiling. "We met on campus while attending Rosh Hashanah services, and somehow, we talked all through the service!"

Married in 1985, they stayed in Princeton, where her husband Dr. Lee Silver, a professor of molecular biology and public affairs, and a renowned expert and author on genetics and bio-tech policy, has a joint affiliation with the Woodrow Wilson School of Public & International Affairs and Princeton University's Department of Molecular Biology.

Education, not surprisingly, is of great interest to the Silvers. Their two sons, Ari, 11, and Max, 9, attend the Princeton Charter School. Their daughter Rebecca, 14, is a freshman at Princeton High School.

"Both my husband and I were founding members of the Charter School," says Ms. Silver. "Lee had been elected to the Princeton Regional School Board, and our interest in the Charter School grew out of dissatisfaction over the existing system. It was not the education we had hoped for."

Educational Ideas

With a group of people who shared their educational ideas, the Silvers were instrumental in establishing the Charter School, which now has an enrollment of 201 students in grades one through eight, with 25 teachers.

"The Charter School focuses on a strong and integrated curriculum from the earliest grades through the eighth grade, so from the beginning there is a continuity of subjects and teachers," explains Ms. Silver. "Teachers are specialists in their subject and teach only that. And if a child has difficulty grasping a concept, the child gets tutoring. Math and science are important, and foreign languages are started in the first grade."

Responding to the criticism of some who feel the Charter School has a negative impact on the public school system, Ms. Silver points out the strength of both institutions. "I think we energize the entire school system. I'm a strong believer in public school education. I'm a product of it. I believe we have rejuvenated the entire system.

"This is just a different educational philosophy. We have a committee of parents and teachers, and we look at all the text books. My husband is on the science committee. We are very involved, and it's wonderful to be part of it. I am very encouraged about its progress. It started as an idea and came to reality."

Something else that started as an idea and came to reality is the Silver family's recent eight and a half month trip to southeast Asia, with visits to Indonesia, Singapore, Malaysia, Thailand, Myanmar (Burma), Vietnam, Cambodia, India, and the United Arab Emirates.

"My husband and I love to travel with a passion," states Ms. Silver. "I feel when I'm traveling I'm living life more intensely. I enjoy worlds I didn't even know existed. And when I come home I enjoy being home more."

Space Travelers

The Silvers had previously taken lengthy sabbaticals — a year in Paris, and eight months in a small medieval village in southern France. Ms. Silver points out that they began traveling right from the start, spending their honeymoon in Egypt, where they scuba dived for the first time. She also mentions a memorable trip she and her husband had in the heartland of Peru.

"We had traveled extensively before as a family, but the trip to southeast Asia was different. We were not joining another community. We were almost like space travelers, looking out at the world. And we were together, and really, truly, depended on each other."

Setting out in May of 2000, they got one-way tickets to Indonesia, and as she reports, "only took what we could carry on our backs! We really got down to the basics. It was very liberating to realize that we don't really need all that stuff we usually have around us."

They chose southeast Asia to explore because "it was a world we didn't know, though a world of diversity and richness. Everywhere we went we had such memorable adventures. We took boats, hired cars, rode bikes, elephants, camels, and trishaws. Our preference was to go to small villages. For example, in Bali, we stayed in a tiny fishing village. Sumatra was the most primitive — dirt roads, woven grass houses. Everything was handmade."

And wherever they went, the reception was warm and welcoming. "The kids were an amazing gateway to the society," she adds. "They were so excited to have such a grand adventure. We went on a boat ride in the Mekong Delta in Vietnam, and a child on another boat beckoned to our kids to come on board, and she showed them her pet python and monkey.

"In Burma, we went to villages where the people had never seen western children. They often welcomed us into their house. And language really didn't seem to matter. One little old, gnarled woman held up three fingers to me to indicate our three kids. I nodded, and then she gave me the thumbs-up sign!"

Charging Elephants

The Silvers hired local people as guides, and they seemed to be led into one exciting adventure after another, experiencing everything from charging elephants and water buffalo to a small two-propelier plane that lost an engine and had to turn back.

"We climbed up a volcano in Bali at 3:30 in the morning," remembers Ms. Silver. "There had been a big earthquake in Sumatra and a tidal wave, and the volcano was steaming. We got to the top, and it was very dramatic.

"In the Mekong Delta, we went on some nice boat rides, but people would warn us that poisonous snakes on overhanging vines could drop down on our shoulders. If that happened, we should take them by the head and fling them away!"

No encounters, she reports, "But we looked up a lot!"

They did see domestic animals and wildlife of all kinds, however — from donkeys, cows,

MAJESTIC MAUSOLEUM: "The Taj Mahal is massive, but it just seems to float. Completed in 1653 in Agra, India, it is white marble, inlaid with precious stones." chickens, and pigs to elephants, camels, antelope, wild dogs, wild peacocks, and a nine-foot lizard. "The monkeys were the kids' favorites, and they were everywhere in all shapes and sizes," says Ms. Silver. "In Indonesia and Thailand, the monkeys live in the temples. One monkey especially liked the scrunchie holding my daughter's pony tail, and he would grab it."

The elephant stories took an unexpected turn, and two were scary, indeed. "We had taken an elephant safari, and my husband and I had a real adventure. We were going along and heard another elephant trumpeting very loudly. Suddenly, he started to charge the elephant we were riding, and actually hit his head against our elephant. But then, amazingly, the elephant the children were on came over and started to stroke the head of the charging elephant with his trunk, and calmed him down. It was very frightening, but ended well."

Knocked Flat

In another incident, 9-year-old Max Silver was charged by a baby elephant and knocked flat. "We had been feeding a family of three elephants, and suddenly, the baby just knocked Max down. Maybe he wanted to play! Fortunately, Max was OK."

Big animals seemed to be everywhere, and Lee Silver had a narrow escape with a mother water buffalo, says Ms. Silver. "We were on a hike in Sumatra, and my husband, without realizing it, walked between the mother buffalo and her calf. The mother charged Lee, and he only escaped by running into the jungle."

In between adventures, the Silvers tended to their children's education. Homework was not forgotten!

"Actually, we 'road-schooled' the kids," reports Ms. Silver. "We traveled with three laptop computers and educational software, tailored to what they would have been studying in school. We'd have lessons several times a week at least, and also, we had the kids write in a journal every day. We would buy English-language newspapers, and we'd all find articles about Asia, and then discuss them. And wherever we were, we'd tell the kids about the place, religion, culture, etc."

In fact, many of the everyday experiences they encountered were actually educational. Different customs, different dress, different food. "The food was wonderful," says Ms. Silver. "I especially loved the Thai food, and the kids' favorite was Vietnamese. There was very good bread both in Vietnam and Cambodia. And all the places were so different. Each country has its own interest. India was wonderfully intense, and in Cambodia we saw Angkor Wat, which was built in the 1100's and is incredible.

"Also, I was really surprised by all the beautiful bright colors. There were many wonderful images of bright colors in Vietnam among the hill tribe peoples' costumes. Brighter than anything we see here."

During this incredible journey, Professor Silver took 10,000 photos, and the family kept up with American friends via the internet. They could share their experiences when they rode horses on the beach in Thailand, scuba dived and snorkeled in Indonesia and Thailand, or when the boys played soccer with local children in the ruins of an old palace in Java.

By the time they were ready to return home, they began to be aware of a few things they had missed, however. "I really wanted an apple," laughs Ms. Silver. "We had had absolutely wonderful tropical fruit, but we couldn't eat anything unless it was peeled, and we could only drink bottled water. And the kids really missed bagels!"

She adds they always look forward to coming back to Princeton, even after such an exotic adventure. "I am always glad to come home. My work is here, and I feel very American. Princeton is such a dynamic community, with so many aspects. The University has a lot going on here. It's a wonderful place to raise kids. It's especially beautiful in the spring, and we love to go bicycling along the Canal path. And it has become a vibrant community of ethnic richness, including more and more good restaurants!

"Backpacking in southeast Asia changed how I now live in Princeton," she adds. "I've realized how every now and then I need to drop everything and just connect with my children, and how the only difference between adventure and ordeal is attitude. I've learned how the best way to catch positive experiences is by surprise."

The Silvers have established a website with photos and commentary on their southeast Asian trip. www.princeton.edu/~lsilver/family

ART

3 Area Women to Show Their Work at Ellarslie

An exhibition by three area artists — "The 3 M's" — will take place at the Ellarslie Mansion, through January 6. A speciaf gafa opening reception will be held on November 17, from 6 to 9.

The "3M's" are Molly Merlino, Marguerite Doernbach, and Marge Chavooshian, all of whom have exhibited at Ellarslie during the past 27 years.

They have also exhibited at the State Museum, with the Trenton Artists Workshop Association (TAWA), Rider University, and in many other focations.

Ms. Merlino, educated at Moore Institute of Art, Philadelphia, has studied with a number of well-known artists. She is currently a student of Mel Leipzig at Mercer County Community College.

Twenty-five examples of her work on display. She has used media ranging from pencil and pastel to oil and acrylic over seven decades of painting.

Ms. Doernbach attended the American Artists School in New York City, where she was awarded a scholarship in sculpture. She studied with a number of artists and even took several lessons from sculptor Henry Moore. She graduated cum loude from Beaver College with a B.F.A.

She has had solo shows at the NJ State Museum, Eflarslie Museum, Mercer County Community College, Alternate Space in Soho, Radcliffe College, and others. She has been an artist in resident at Middlesex County and also won the Mercer County Purchase Award.

Educated at the Art Student's League, Ms. Chavooshian has studied with Reginald Marsh and Mario Cooper. She has won a number of awards — from the American Water Color Society, the Painters and Sculptors Society, and many more.

She is a member of the American Watercolor Society, National Watercolor Society, Philadelphia Watercolor Society and National Association of Women Artists.

Museum hours are Tuesday through Saturday, 11 to 3; and Sunday, 1 to 4. For more information, call 989-3632.

Hunter to Sign Book On Artist Leonard Nelson

Sam Hunter, a Princeton University emeritus professor of art history, and curator of the first Jackson Pollack museum exhibit at the Museum of Modern Art in 1956, wifl sign copies of his latest book at Rizzoli Book Store in New York on November 15, at 6.

The book Leonord Nelson: A Life in Art chronicles the life of this Berwyn (Pa.) artist who has, until recently, been overshadowed by better known abstract expressionists and leading color field painters in New York.

Work of 3 Area Artists Is in Crafts Annual

The work of Princeton resident Anne John is included in the "2001 New Jersey Arts Annuaf: Crafts" exhibition, at the New Jersey State Museum through January 4. Also represented are Pennington artists Michaef Welliver and Rory Mahon.

The New Jersey Arts Annuaf is a series of exhibitions highlighting the works of visual artists and craftspeople in the state. It is sponsored by the NJ State Council on the Arts, in conjunction with a consortium of six museums.

Included in the exhibition are jewefry, pots, vases, censers, furniture, lamps, and other functional craft objects.

The Museum, at 205 West State Street, Trenton, is open from Tuesday through Saturday, 9 to 4:45; and on Sunday, from noon to 5. Admission is free; and parking is available in the Capitol Complex parking building. For information or directions, call 292-6464, or visit the Museum's Web site at www.newjerseystatemuseum.org.

Furniture-Maker Uses Recycled Elevator Cable

Princeton artist and furniture-maker Peter Abrams will show recent examples of his work, at 620 Rosedafe Road, on November 16, from 4 to 10; and November 17, from 10 to 4.

Mr. Abrams works primarily with recycled elevator cable to create furniture and his locally-famous "Firebowl," a metal, outdoor fire receptacle.

"It's flexible, yet incredibly strong," Mr. Abrams says of the cable. "ft has great texture, and lovely fluidity." Besides cable, he uses glass, wood, stainless steef, and stone for his pieces. His work has been widely shown, both in the U.S., and in France and The Netherlands.

Mr. Abrams' studio, Modern Metalworks, is in Trenton; and visits are by appointment. For more information, call 396-9936.

Exhibits

The Skillman Dairy Farm Series and other paintings by Princeton resident Betty Curtiss will be on exhibit at the Morpeth Gallery, 43 West Broad Street, Hopewell, from November 24, through December 23. An artist's reception will take place on opening day, from 6 to 9.

Oil paint is Ms. Curtiss' medium. The show includes images from the 1,600-acre, state-owned and state-operated Skillman Dairy Farm, that is home to 90 purebred Jersey cows. A number of still life paintings round out the exhibit.

Ms. Curtiss' works have been shown in many juried and invitational exhibits, including Phillips Mill (receiving the Founders Award in 2000); Mercer County Artists; and last year's "Contemporary Still Life: Vanitas to Veritas," at the Gallery at Bristol Myers Squibb.

1946: The bikini is banned in Biarritz, Bing Crosby sings "Blue Skies," and TOWN TOPICS begins publication

Area Group to Sponsor Trip to the Guggenheim

On Tuesday, November 27, West Windsor-Plainsboro Community Education will sponsor a trip to the Guggenheim Museum to view the exhibit, "Norman Rockwell: Pictures for the American People." The exhibit is an optimistic chronicle of American life, associated with a certain nostalgic image of the United States.

Before visiting the Guggenheim, trip participants will take a "Behind the Scenes" tour of Radio City Music Hall, featuring the great stage, auditorium, and technical marvels used in productions like the Christmas Spectacular.

The bus will leave the First Presbyterian Church of Dutch Neck at 8:30 and will return at 5:45. For more information, or to register, call 716-5034.

An exhibition of paintings by Edward W. Boulton, a student of Thomas Eakins, opened on November 10, at the Pedersen Gallery, 17 North Union Street, Lambertville. It will remain through December 15.

Boulton studied with Eakins at the Pennsylvania Academy of Fine Arts in Philadelphia. When Eakins was ousted from the Academy because of his insistence on using male nude models in the classroom, Boulton joined him in founding the Philadelphia Art Students League, and later became director of the League.

The exhibition, entitled "Edward Boulton and Thomas Eakins and the Philadelphia Art Students League," also includes paintings by Margaret Crowell and Edmund Quinn, two League painters. There are, as well, several photographs, which may have been taken by Eakins — or by Boulton. The two worked closely together in photographing models for paintings; and attribution is difficult.

In 1893, Boulton moved with his wife to a 200-acre farm, "The Old House," in Point Pleasant on the Manasquan River. Over the next 34 years, he produced work that combined the advanced ideas of the Art Students League with a sense of place provided by the subjects of the Jersey Shore.

Gallery hours are Saturday and Sunday from noon to 5, and by appointment. For more information, call 397-1332.

ON THE MANASQUAN: This landscape by Edward W. Boulton is part of an exhibition of paintings by Edward W. Boulton that opened recently at the Pedersen Gallery in Lambertville. Boulton, a favorite student of Philadelphia painter Thomas Eakins, lived and worked for many years in Point Pleasant. Call 397-1332.

The Coryell Gallery, 8 Coryell Street, Lambertville, will present a Gala Holiday Exhibition from November 18 to January 6. Showing their work will be Vincent Ceglia, whose media are watercolors and acrylics, and Albert L. Bross Jr., who paints in oil. An opening reception will take place from 3 to 6.

Gallery hours are Wednesday through Sunday, from 12 noon to 5. For more information, call 397-0804.

IN LAMBERTVILLE: "Generations Past," by Albert L. Bross Jr., will be at the Coryell Gallery in Lambertville from November 18 through January 6, along with other paintings by the artist. Mr. Bross, who works in oil, is showing with watercolorist Vincent Ceglia.

MUSIC/THEATER

Two-Day Festival Offers Music Made Electroacoustically

On Saturday and Sunday, November 17 and 18, the Department of Music and Friends of Music at Princeton will present a two-day festival of electroacoustic music featuring compositions by faculty and graduate student composers from Princeton, Dartmouth, and Columbia University, as well as talks and a round-table discussion by invited speakers.

In addition, several ongoing outdoor installations will be set up in the vicinity of the Woolworth Center for Musical Studies. Music for Lawn Games (2001) is by Ted Coffey. Project Arbol: Installation #1, Princeton, N.J. (Deer-B-Gone) is by Mary Wright.

The first concert will take place in the McAlpin Rehearsal Room, Woolworth Center of Musical Studies, at 2 p.m. on Saturday afternoon, November 17.

The program will include Some Indelicately Unwrought Granules by Christopher Bailey; Cossette Solo Performance by Aki Onda, bushwocked by Stefan Tomic, and Transfigured Evonescence by Kyoko Kobayashi). Also to be heard is Improv - 533 for two guitars, bass, piano, voice, and laptop computer.

Following the concert, at 3:35 p.m., there will be a round-table discussion with speakers Brad Garton, Terry Pender, and Douglas Repetto, members of the staff of the Columbia University Computer Music Center.

A second talk will take place at 4:55 p.m., offered by Perry Cook, Assistant Professor of Computer Science and Music at Princeton University.

The festival continues on Saturday at 8 p.m. with a concert at Taplin Auditorium in Fine Hall. The program opens with ABC, Movement I, by Paul Lansky, Professor of Music at Princeton.

"The work is the first of a ten-movement suite of pieces playing with the contexts of alphabet recitation, familiar to all of us, but even more so to those who in recent years either watched Sesame Street or had children who did.

Other works to be heard include Karaoke, by Reuben de Lautour; Quiff; Noise~ by Rosalie Hirs; Atomic Tango by Douglas Geers; Black Box by Keith Moore, and Vox by Paul Botelho.

Sunday afternoon will open with two talks at the McAlpin Rehearsal Room, Woolworth Center. The first, at 2 p.m., will be given by Kui Dong, a member of the Music Department at Dartmouth and a composer of many different kinds of music.

The second talk, at 3:45 p.m., will be given by composer Steve Reich, a leading pioneer of Minimalism whose music has been influential on composers all over the world.

On Sunday, November 18, at 8 p.m. in Taplin Auditorium in Fine Hall the program will open with I-v-II by Larry Polansky. The work "explores real-time tuning, this time in the simplest possible fashion. The guitars are retuned to three different harmonic series during the course of the piece," notes the composer.

Tae Hong Park's Abo-ji employs speech, environmental, synthesized, and processed sounds.

Socred Amnesio is "a musical essay on the art of history creation through structured memory loss and transformation," observes its composer Eric Lyon.

It will be followed by Shape Up, Shape Down by Kimo Johnson, who describes it as "a composition that presents all possible paths from a six-note ascending sequence to a six-note descending sequence."

Midnight Oil is by Paul Koonce, Assistant Professor of Music at Princeton, whose music focuses upon issues of representation and perception in electroacoustic sound.

CFD Sound V "is put together from ten different simulations of fluid flow in a horizontal duct," explains its composer Ed Childs.

All festival events are free.

MUSIC MAKERS: Esma Pasic-Filipovic, left, and Katherine McClure will perform works by J.S. Bach and John Rutter on Sunday, November 18 at 6 p.m. at Nassau Presbyterian Church. Admission is free.

Recital Is Scheduled At Nassau Presbyterian

Nassau at Six continues its 2001-2002 season of recitals with a concert by Princeton residents flutist Katherine McClure and pianist Esma Pasic-Filipovic on Sunday, November 18 at 6 p.m. The concert will take place at Nassau Presbyterian Church, 61 Nassau Street.

The program will include J.S. Bach's Sonata in E Major, BWV 1035; John Rutter's Suite Antique (1979); Bernhard Heiden's Sonotina (1958); and Gary Schocker's Regrets and Revelations (1986).

Katherine McClure earned a master's degree in flute performance from the Mason Gross School of the Arts at Rutgers University. Her previous teaching appointments include positions at the Conservatoire Alfred Loewenguth in Paris, the Mason Gross School of Music, Wagner College, Princeton Conservatory, and The Peddle School.

Presently, she teaches flute at Westminster Conservatory and The Lawrenceville School, and also maintains a private studio in Princeton.

A frequent performer with many groups in the Philadelphia and New York metropolitan region, she is a regular member of the Riverside Symphonia and the Newtown Chamber Symphony of Bucks County, Pa.

Esma Pasic-Filipovic received her Masters of Music Arts degree at the University of Novi Sad, Yugoslavia, where she studied with Arbo Valdma. Before arriving in the United States, she was an accompanist at the Hochchule für Musik und Darstellende Kunst for flutist Raphael Leone of the Vienna Symphony.

She has taught at the Academy of Music at the University of Sarajevo and at the Belle School of Music in Yonkers, N.Y. Ms. Pasic-Filipovic currently serves on the faculty of Westminster Conservatory.

The 2001-2002 Nassau at Six continues on December 16 with concert organist David Higgs.

THEATER REVIEW

The Subject is Death, With a Dose of Humor and Lyricism, In Michael Cristofer's "The Shadow Box" at Theatre Intime

The characters of Michael Cristofer's The Shadow Box are all "shadow boxing" with an adversary (death) they cannot see. The play is set in a sort of shadow box, a hospice for the terminally ill — a glass-case world protected from the harsh rays of the sun. Each character — like all of us — is, as Shakespeare's Macbeth describes, but "a walking shadow, a poor player that frets and struts his hour upon the stage and then is heard no more."

Currently playing at Theatre Intime on the Princeton University campus, The Shadow Box, 1977 Pulitzer Prize and Tony Award winner, weaves together, in a lyrical drama of varying moods, the lives of three different families facing the final stages. The subject is death, but also life and the discovery of what is most important in life.

Elizabeth Kubler-Ross, renowned doctor and author (On Death and Dying, 1969), describes the stages of denial, anger, bargaining, depression and acceptance that we go through in facing death: "These stages will last for different periods of time, they will replace each other, or exist at times side by side ... But the one thing that usually persists through all these stages is hope."

These reactions and behaviors are manifested vividly and poignantly here in the diverse realistic characters of Theatre Intime's current production, directed with intelligence and sensitivity by Princeton University sophomore David Brundige. The cast of eight undergraduates and one recent graduate is capable and credible. The strong, finely tuned ensemble is well rehearsed and carefully coordinated,

The pacing of this production is appropriately swift, and, despite the heavy subject matter, the tone is often light, wistful, never ponderous. Lighting by Sarah Rodriguez and set by Evren Odcikin enhance the mood and clearly delineate the three strands of plot interweavings, as the focus shifts from one cottage of the hospice to another.

The First Cottage

In the first cottage is Joe (John Portlock), a down-to-earth workingman, facing death and struggling to deal with his high-strung wife Maggie (Heather Morr) and their guitar-playing, teen-aged son Steve (Jeremy Chan), who arrive for a visit. Maggie nervously chatters on, but cannot face the truth of her husband's terminal illness ("I want you to come home"), nor can she tell the truth to Steve. Mr. Portlock is especially convincing and appealing in his sad resignation, in his dreaming and in his struggles to help his wife to achieve an understanding and acceptance of his death.

The proceedings in the second cottage, nicely counterpointing the interactions in cottage one, are more volatile, more irreverent, and less conventional. Brian (Ben Rice-Townsend), a gay writer and intellectual, lives with his jealous, intense lover Mark (Matt Leffel). The surprise arrival of Beverly (Liz Berg), Brian's alcoholic ex-wife, precipitates a clash between Mark and Beverly, with the dying Brian in the middle.

"The only way to beat this," Brian muses, "is to leave absolutely nothing behind, to do absolutely everything," but the philosophical young man is unable to escape moments of terror when he finds himself shaking with fear in struggling to face what is happening to him. The three young actors effectively make the required character stretches here — Mr. Rice-Townsend in his wise, humorous acceptance of his impending death; Mr. Leffel in his anger, resentment and gradual coming to terms with the truth of his lover's demise; and Ms. Berg (decked out with several pounds of jewelry and a shimmering, skintight dress) in her fluctuations between a sensual, boisterous drunkenness, and a more somber, sympathetic recognition of the reality of Brian's imminent death.

The third cottage reveals the only approaching death in the play that could be called "timely." Unlike the other two hospice patients, Felicity (Barbara Luse) — wheelchair-bound, senile, tired and bitter — should have been ready for death a long time ago. Her daughter Agnes (Melissa Galvez) is trapped in a confused world of contradictions in which she composes and reads fictitious letters to her mother from a deceased, but still awaited, second daughter. Agnes constantly wishes her mother dead, but continues to hold out this false ray of hope, prolonging the agony for both mother and daughter. Ms. Galvez presents a sympathetic, believable young woman in this trap of her own devising, and Ms. Luse, in a worthy effort to bridge the 60-year age gap here, depicts a colorful, feisty Felicity ("Sons of bitches" is her favorite expression).

The ninth figure in The Shadow Box is a resident physician-interviewer, who presides over a small portion of the right apron of the stage, which is occasionally lit with a white light, as the hospice residents move into what is presumably the psychiatrist's office. Jeremy Weissman plays the role, for the most part as an offstage voice, with smooth authority, as he questions and consoles his troubled patients.

The Shadow Box, deftly rendered here in this polished Intime production, holds up surprisingly well 24 years after its initial Broadway production. Before the AIDS crisis and the many plays, movies and television specials on that subject, and long before our tragic confrontation with mass destruction on September 11, 2001, The Shadow Box must have seemed boldly original, enlightening, even profound, in its forthright treatment of death. Though it no longer holds its initial power to shock, impress or surprise, The Shadow Box still provides a touching glimpse of these characters' lives and an engaging perspective on the eternal verities of our fragile mortality. "Where did it all go? That's a lot to let go of ... People don't want to let go. Do they? They think it's supposed to last forever ... it doesn't last forever."

—Donald Gilpin

Theatre Intime's The Shadow Box will run for one more weekend, November 15-17, at the Hamilton Murray Theater on the Princeton University campus, with performances at 8 p.m. and an additional matinee at 2 p.m. on Saturday, November 17. Call 258-1742 for reservations, or visit the Theatre Intime website at www.theatreintime.org for more information.

MOVIE REVIEW

"Monsters, Inc."

92 minutes; Rated: G
Directed by Pete Docter
Written by Andrew Stanton and Daniel Gerson

Remember the monsters that hid under the bed and lurked in the closet when you were little? The folks at Pixar Animation Studios remember those monsters, too. They've created Monsters, Inc., a delightful film showing that monsters are plain old working stiffs who schlepp off each morning to earn a buck like the rest of us.

The monsters in the movie live in Monstropolis, a vast bustling place where the residents buy bilge berries at the "Grossery Store," read "The Daily Glob" and obey the "Stalk" and "Don't Stalk" signs. The town's main employer is Monsters, Inc., a factory whose employees sneak into children's closets at night, collect the kids' screams and store them in canisters to power Monstropolis. Trouble is, kids don't scare easily these days and the scream supply is running perilously low.

The movie's two lead characters are voiced by John Goodman and Billy Crystal. Instead of recording their lines separately, as is the norm, Goodman and Crystal did their scenes in the studio together, playing off each other. Goodman is the voice of Sully, a furry galoot with 2.5 million individual computer-drawn hairs on his turquoise and purple body. Crystal is the voice of Sully's buddy, Mike, a phobic green eyeball on legs. Mike's entire range of emotions is conveyed via an eyelid (or maybe it's an eyebrow). Steve Buscemi is the voice of evil Randall, whose slithery body changes from stripes to plaid to polka dots in a flash.

Monsters, Inc. is smart enough to entertain on two levels. It's fastpaced fun for kids and it has an ample supply of gags and sly references to tickle the funnybones of grownups. The movie coasts a bit in the middle, then picks up steam to end in a razzle dazzle finale that raises the bar way, way up for future animation.

P.S. Don't be late or you'll miss a five-minute chucklefest of a short entitled "For the Birds."

—Janet Kirk

Robert Taub

Pianist Robert Taub To Perform at PDS

Princeton Day School Visiting Artist Robert Taub, will offer an evening program of music and conversation on November 16 at the school's Herbert and Marguerite McAneny Theater.

Before performing Beethoven Sonata in E Major, Op. 109 and the Twenty-four Preludes Op. 28 of Chopin, Dr. Taub will introduce and discuss the works. Following the performances, he will lead the audience in a question and answer session.

Since his debut at Alice Tully Hall in 1981, Mr. Taub has performed several times on the Great Performers Series at Lincoln Center and appeared throughout the United States, Europe, the Far East, and Latin America. His appearances at Carnegie Hall most recently included the world premiere of Milton Babbitt's Concerto No. 2 with the Metropolitan Opera Orchestra under James Levine. Dr. Taub has performed with the San Francisco Symphony, Philadelphia Orchestra, Los Angeles Philharmonic, Utah Symphony Orchestra, Montreal Symphony, Munich Philharmonic, BBC Philharmonic, and Bonn Philharmonic.

He has also participated in major festivals, including the Saratoga Festival where he collaborated with Charles Dutoit, the Lichfield Festival in England with Sir Edward Downes, San Francisco's Midsummer Mozart Festival, and the Geneva International Summer Festival.

Robert Taub just completed a seven-year appointment as Artist-In-Residence at the Institute for Advanced Study. During that time, he performed a large variety of solo and chamber works, and completed a book, Playing the Beethoven Piano Sonatas, that is scheduled for publication by Amadeus Press in Spring 2002.

As the Visiting Artist at PDS, he works with the school's music department teaching master classes with students, coaching student ensembles in violin and offering studio piano lessons to advanced students.

The evening program of music and conversation on November 16 at PDS will begin at 8 p.m. Tickets are $12 adults, $8 students. Proceeds benefit the Music Program at Princeton Day School. Seating is limited. For tickets, e-mail taub concert@pds.org or call 924-6700 ext. 479.

Play by Iizuka Offered at University

Princeton University Program in Theater and Dance will present the professionally directed and designed Fall Show 2001-2001: Naomi Iizuka's aloha, say the pretty girls, directed by Roger Babb.

aloha follows a group of 20-somethings as they struggle to make sense of everything in the chaos of New York City.

As these young generation X'ers search for love and some meaning, the story takes them to Hawaii, Alaska and the dense jungles of Inner Borneo.

Mr. Babb is the Artistic Director of Otrabanda Company, an experimental theater company based in New York. He has collaborated with many of New York's theater and dance artists, including Julie Taylor, Merideth Monk, Ann Bogart, Ann Carlson, David Cale, and Paul Zimet.

He is a doctoral candidate in the Program in Theatre at C.U.N.Y. and a member of the Talking Band Laboratory, an ongoing interdisciplinary workshop that researches acting and performance.

Mr. Babb teaches various acting and directing classes at Princeton University. He has directed A Night of Beckett Plays at 185 Nassau for the 1999-2000 Fall Show and a senior thesis production of Mud last year.

Performances are November 15-17 at 8 p.m. Ticket prices are $10, $8 for students. The night of sales are $10 for all tickets. for advance ticket sales call the Frist Ticket Office, 258-1742. Matthews Acting Studio is located at 185 Nassau Street.

Drumming Is Topic At Area Library

Drummer Gerry Hemingway, will perform and discuss his work at Plainsboro Public Library on November 18, at 7 p.m.

Throughout his career, both as a composer and an improvisor, Mr. Hemingway has returned regularly to the format of solo music.

Mr. Hemingway has been making a living as a composer and performer of solo and ensemble music since 1974. He is a Guggenheim fellow and has received numerous commissions for chamber and orchestral work.

He is currently completing a recording for the German label, Between the Lines, entitled Songs.

The program is free and open to the public. Plainsboro Public Library is located in the Municipal Complex at 641 Plainsboro Road. For details and/or directions to the Library call 275-2897.

KINGSTON CONCERT: Wally Lawder, a resident of Kingston, will perform Saturday, November 17 at 8 p.m. at the Kingston Methodist Church. He will debut his new CD, "Leaving Town," accompanied by many of the musicians on the album. Tickets are $10 at the door.

Music Heritage Series Begins Its Fifth Year at Westminster

Westminster Conservatory will present the first concert in a series of three in its 2001-2002 Music Heritage Series with the theme "Music of the Americas" on Sunday, November 18, at 4 p.m. in Bristol Chapel on the campus of Westminster Choir College.

The series, in its fifth year, has been coordinated by Luba Sindler and focuses on music written by composers from the United States, Canada and South America. The other performances are on March 17, and May 12, at 4 p.m. in Bristol Chapel.

Included in the repertoire will be Gombling Songs by John Jacob Niles; Sonata for guitar by Manuel Ponce; Sonata #3 in A Minor (Sonoto Etereo) for piano by Arnold Rosner (dedicated to the victims of the September 11th tragedy); Adogio for recorder and piano by Perry Winters Owens; Duos for flutes Op. 34 by Robert Muczynsky for two flutes; and art songs by Lee Hoiby for soprano and piano.

The performers will be Timothy Urban, baritone and recorder; Luba Sindler, piano; James Day, guitar; Marvin Rosen, piano; Jill Crawford and Barbara Highton Williams, flute; and Nancy Froysland Hoerl, soprano.

Luba Sindler has amassed an enormous repertoire and expertise and has appeared in Carnegie Hall and Alice Tully Hall in New York.

Born in St. Petersburg, Russia, she studied at the St. Petersburg Conservatory, graduating with a doctoral degree in piano and chamber music and later teaching at the same institution while maintaining an active performance schedule.

Timothy Urban is active both as an instrumentalist specializing in early music and as a singer. He has presented recorder recitals and concerts of vocal chamber music in Hong Kong and was invited to perform at and be a clinician for the first Baroque Music Festival in Taiwan.

Since making his professional debut as concert artist in 1993, James Day has performed throughout the Eastern United States and in Europe as both soloist and chamber musician. His performances have been featured on television and radio broadcasts in North Carolina and New York.

Marvin Rosen has given many recitals and lecture recitals as well as radio performances. He is the host of the weekly radio program "Classical Discoveries" on WPRB.

This program features rarely heard repertoire and airs every Wednesday morning from 6 to 11 a.m.

Flutist Barbara Highton Williams is a former member of the San Jose Wind Symphony in California, and lived for five years in France, where she appeared regularly as flute soloist accompanying an o coppello chorale.

Since moving with her family to Princeton in 1995, she has appeared often in chamber music programs and in recital.

Jill Crawford performs on both Baroque and modern flutes and has played with the Riverside Symphonia, Opera Florham, and Whitechapel Baroque and has been a soloist with the New Brunswick Chamber Orchestra.

Soprano Nancy Froysland Hoerl has performed in Europe, the United States and the United Kingdom. She is active as a chamber musician and has performed opera and operetta roles in Austria, Minnesota, Pennsylvania, Maryland and Delaware and regularly appears with the Westminster Community Orchestra.

Westminster Conservatory, the community music school of Westminster Choir College of Rider University, offers musical instruction for all ages and stages of advancement in piano, organ, voice, strings, woodwinds, brass, guitar, harp and harpsichord.

Admission is $7. Admission for the full series of three concerts on November 18, March 17 and May 12 is $15. For tickets or more information, contact the Westminster Conservatory at 921-7104. For 24-hour concert information call 219-2001.

Fall Choir Concert Scheduled at Seminary

Princeton Theological Seminary will present a fall choir concert "For Love Is Strong As Death: A Musical Concert of Love Songs" on Friday, November 16, at 8 p.m. in Miller Chapel.

The Seminary's Cantate Domino Choir will sing love songs by composers running the gamut from Johann Sebastian Bach to Daniel Pinkham and Alice Parker. The choir will be directed by Martin Tel, director of music at Princeton Theological Seminary, and accompanied by ChiYi Chen, and the concert will feature soprano soloist Bonnie Draina.

The concert is free and open to the public.

Princeton Football Rallies for 34-14 Win over Yale

Princeton University grabbed a lead against Yale on Saturday, and this time the Tigers refused to let go. After trailing 14-0 late in the first half, Princeton scored 34 unanswered points and cruised to a 34-14 victory.

Yale jumped in front 7-0 after a touchdown run by fullback Jay Schulze. He added a second touchdown run to give the Bulldogs a14-0 cushion. The Bulldogs looked like they would add to that lead after moving the ball into Princeton territory, but Brandon Mueller stepped in front of Yale quarterback T.J. Hyland's pass to end the threat.

Princeton quarterback David Splithoff then marched his team down the field, and set up a score after connecting with B.J. Szymanski for a 24-yard gain. Tiger running back Cameron Atkinson capped off the drive with a four-yard touchdown run, trimming the lead to 14-7 after kicker Taylor Northrop's extra point.

After a change of possession, Princeton got the ball back on its own 47 with two minutes remaining in the half. Splithoff found Szymanski for a 53-yard touchdown on the team's first play from scrimmage, and suddenly the score was tied. The score remained knotted at 14 heading into the break.

The second half was all Princeton. The Tigers took the opening kickoff and went 80 yards for a score after only five plays. Splithoff and Szymanski connected again, this time on a 39-yard pass play for a touchdown that gave the Tigers a 21-14 lead. Splithoff finished the game with 156 yards passing.

Yale looked as though it would tie the game on its next possession after driving to the Princeton 22, but Tiger defensive back Kevin Kongsile intercepted a pass from Hyland, and raced 65 yards the opposite direction to the Bulldogs' 13. Princeton increased its lead to 24-14 after a Northrop 19-yard field goal.

Princeton has made a habit of losing big leads in the fourth quarter, so a 24-14 margin was nothing to get excited about, at least until Atkinson rumbled 40 yards for a touchdown on the first play of the quarter. That gave the Tigers some breathing room. Atkinson carried the ball 17 times and amassed 138 yards.

Northrop sealed the win with a field goal, and also broke Alex Sierk's school record with 38. He needs three field goals to tie the Ivy League record, but it will have to come in Princeton's regular season finale at Dartmouth on Saturday.

The Tigers improved to 2-4 in the Ivy League, 2-6 overall with the victory, and moved into a fifth-place tie with Cornell. Yale is 1-5 in the conference, 3-5 overall. The Bulldogs moved into a tie for last place with Dartmouth.

Undefeated Tiger Teams of 1950-51 Honored at Saturday's Football Game

Princeton University fans, coaches and players were delighted to see former Princeton football player Dick Kazmaier back on the field Saturday.

Kazmaier, winner of the 1951 Heisman Trophy as the top college football player, was honored, along with members of the unbeaten 1950 and 1951 Tiger football teams, during halftime of the Tigers' game against Yale.

Kazmaier spoke to the Princeton football players at Friday night's team dinner, and his words apparently served as an inspiration, because the Tigers crushed Yale 34 to 14.

At halftime on Saturday, Kazmaier stood proudly on the field with his Heisman Trophy. He is the only Princeton player ever to win the honor.

What's the major-college football record for one team beating the SAME opponent the most consecutive times? ... The record is held by Notre Dame which has beaten Navy 37 years in a row ... The last time Navy beat Notre Dame was in 1963 when Navy was led by Heisman winner Roger Staubach ... Navy and Notre Dame have played every year since then, and Notre Dame has won every time.

Field Hockey Advances to Final Four After 2-1 Victory over ODU Sunday

There will be a new college field hockey champion this season, thanks to the Princeton University Tigers. They defeated defending champion Old Dominion, 2-1, on Sunday to advance to the NCAA Final Four at Kent State University in Kent, Ohio after throttling Northeastern, 4-1, on Saturday.

The Tigers' opponent in the Final Four will be Michigan. The two teams will meet on Friday afternoon at 4. The other semifinal matchup between Maryland and Wake Forest will begin after the first game.

Princeton got on the board first against Old Dominion Sunday with 26:24 left in the first period after freshman Natalie Martiroslan skipped a pass to Ivy Friebe, who squeezed the ball past Monarchs' goalie Marybeth Freeman for a score. The celebration was short lived.

Old Dominion answered with 18:27 remaining in the first period when freshman forward Lynn Farquhar took a pass from teammate Becky Loy and zipped a shot past Tiger goalie Kelly Baril to tie the score at 1-1 heading into the break. At one point in the first period, Old Dominion had four consecutive penalty corners, but was unable to convert on any of them.

Picketts Scores Late

The score remained tied until Princeton's Cory Picketts fired a shot past Freeman with 5:07 remaining. Picketts also made a key defensive play in the closing seconds when she poked the ball away from Old Dominion after a penalty corner and sent it up the field, running the clock down.

She talked about the winning goal afterwards.

"It was a deflection off of an Old Dominion defender, off of her stick," she explained. "It came right to me. I was going to take the shot right away, but I held onto the ball a little bit longer and pushed it right under the goalie. I didn't want to take a chance with a big swing, so I kept it on my stick and just pushed it, when I saw the opening."

"I can't tell you how much fun we've had this year," said Princeton head coach Beth Bozman. "To be able to succeed at this level, and have this much fun has been tremendous. I felt we are a stronger team now than when we played them [Old Dominion] in September.

"Cory and everyone else on the team was going to give everything they had today. It is very exciting to see a team so connected be rewarded for their hard work, and to be one of only four teams still playing."

In order to face Old Dominion, the Tigers had to beat Northeastern on Saturday. The two teams met in the September 3 season opener, with Princeton winning 4-2. Princeton won Saturday's game 4-1.

Tiger freshman Ashley Sennett scored unassisted with 8:22 remaining in the first period after gathering the ball on a missed shot. She scored once more with 5:39 left in the contest after taking a beautiful feed from teammate Claire Miller.

Picketts led Rachael Becker on an acrobatic spinning shot that sailed into the back of the cage with 16:45 left in the game, and Martiroslan also scored after plowing through defenders with 23:23 remaining.

It was tough, demanding weekend for Princeton, which doesn't have a senior on its roster. The result is gratifying.

"This is completely new to me," said a jubilant Sennett. "This is such an awesome team, chemistry wise. To get to the Final Four is exactly what we wanted to do, and now we're going."

Field Hockey Honors For Princeton Players

The Princeton field hockey team placed eight players on the 2001 STX/NFHCA Division 1 Regional All-America team. Five players took first-team honors, while three were named to the second-team. The 2001 STX/NFCHA Division 1 All-America teams will be announced on November 19.

Princeton junior co-captains Emily Townsend and Kelly Baril were first-team selections, along with classmate Ivy Friebe and sophomores Claire Miller and Cory Picketts. Junior Rachael Becker and freshmen Jen Elliot and Natalie Martiroslan were second-team selections.

Townsend is the only returning starter in the Tigers' defensive corp and has been its leader all season. She is second on the team in scoring with 24 points (10 goals, 4 assists), and was one of three Princeton players to be unanimously selected to the first-team All-Ivy.

Baril had played 1217 minutes in the cage for the Tigers. She has a .769 save percentage and a 1.32 goals-against average. Most recently she posted nine first-half saves in the 2-1 win over Old Dominion in the NCAA Tournament's second round.

Friebe's season has been nothing short of remarkable. A unanimous first-team All-Ivy pick, she was also selected as the 2001 Ivy League Player of the Year after being named the league's Player of the Week four times during the season.

She has led the nation in points, in points per game, goals and goals per game throughout the season, and is also ranked in the top-10 in assists per game.

Picketts and teammate Ashley Sennett garnered Ivy League honors for their performance in the NCAA tournament last weekend. Picketts was named the IvyLeagueSports.com Co-Player of the Week for the period ending November 11.

She scored the winning goal for Princeton against Old Dominion on Sunday, and made a key defensive stop in the closing seconds to help the team secure a spot in the Final Four.

Sennett was named the IvyLeagueSports.com Rookie of the Week for the period ending November 11.

She scored twice against Northeastern in Saturday's NCAA quarterfinal game.

Tiger Men Play Waiting Game; Post Season Status in Question

The Princeton University men's soccer team improved its chances of receiving an NCAA bid with victories over Yale and Lehigh last week.

The Tigers finished the regular season with a 2-0 victory over the Bulldogs on Saturday. Sophomore Jeff Hare and freshman Teddy van Beuren each scored their first goal of the season, with both goals coming in the second half.

Tiger senior Mike Nugent's kick bounced off Hare's head and into the goal at the 57:55 mark, giving the Orange and Black a 1-0 lead. Van Beuren sent a shot off the crossbar and into the goal at the 85:13 mark for the final margin. Nugent was credited with the assist, his second of the game, bringing his season total to six, and his point total to 30.

Old Nassau goalie Jason White recorded his tenth shutout of the season, and had four saves in the game.

Nugent sent a shot in goal past diving Lehigh keeper Ryan Grzeszczak at the 78-minute mark on November 6 to lift the Tigers to a 2-1 win. Princeton had to rally for the win after Lehigh jumped in front 1-0 on a Steve Fisher goal at the 22:30 mark.

The Tigers' Benji Diggs tied the score at the 56-minute mark after taking a cross pass from Lucas Moskowitz. Nugent then found the back of the net on a Matt Behncke assist for the winning goal.

Princeton finished the season with a 10-2-5 overall record, 5-1-1 in the Ivy League, one-half game behind first place Harvard. Old Nassau will likely receive a nod from the NCAA Selection Committee. If Harvard loses against Brown this Saturday, Princeton wins the conference and receives an automatic bid to the NCAA Tournament.

The Tigers are currently ranked 16th in the media, and 22nd in the coaches poll. The 2001 NCAA selection show will air on November 19 at 3 p.m., should there still be any question as to the status of Princeton's post-season bid.

Youth Wrestling To Begin This Month

The Princeton Recreation Department will offer an 11-week youth wrestling program in partnership with the Princeton University wrestling program.

Princeton Amateur Wrestling Society (P.A.W.S.) is a combination of instruction and match competition that takes place on Tuesday and Thursday evenings from 6:15 until 7:30 at Jadwin Gymnasium on the university campus.

The program will run from November 27 through February 14. Match competition will begin in early January. P.A.W.S. is open to boys and girls in grades 3-8. The program is open to interested participants of all skill levels. Beginners are welcome.

For more information, please call Ben Stentz at the Princeton Recreation Department at 921-9480.

PU Women Will Host NCAA Soccer Games

BESTED BY THE BULLDOGS: PU junior forward Joan Cundey and the rest of the Tiger team, were edged, 1-0, by upstart Yale on Saturday in women's soccer.

For the first time ever, Princeton University will be a site for women's soccer NCAA playoff action, as the Tigers team will host first and second round games at Lourie-Love Field on Friday and Sunday.

Princeton, which went 13-2-2 overall and tied for the Ivy League championship with a 5-1-1 mark, will face Loyola of Maryland (9-8-2) at 7 p.m. Friday, with 12-7-1 Rutgers taking on Boston University (14-5-1) in the first game of the double-header at 4.

The winners of Friday's clashes will face-off at 1 p.m. Sunday, with a berth in the NCAA Sweet 16 on the line.

This year also brings the expansion of the NCAA Division I Women's College Cup field to 64 teams; the largest previous bracket had included only 48 clubs. The 2001 field includes 28 league champions as automatic qualifiers, while the remaining 36 squads were granted at-large bids.

The top eight seeds for the 20th annual NCAA women's soccer tourney are the University of North Carolina (which is making its 20th straight appearance), second-seeded Santa Clara, No. 3 UCLA, No. 4 Portland, No. 5 Stanford, sixth-slotted Florida, seventh-spotted Notre Dame and No. 8 UConn, which is the only other team to earn a berth in the tourney in each of its first 20 years.

The survivor of the sub-regional at Princeton will move on to Chapel Hill, N.C., which is also hosting first and second round games on Friday and Sunday.

Sweet 16 and Elite Eight round games are set for November 23, 24 or 25 and November 30, December 1 or 2, respectively.

The national Final Four is set for December 7 and 9 at Gerald J. Ford Stadium on the campus of Southern Methodist University in Dallas, Texas.

Friday will bring Princeton's third straight appearance in the national championship tournament. The Tigers fell to homestanding Hartford, 2-1, in the first round in 1999, before losing at Wisconsin, 1-0, in the 119th minute of play in last year's opener.

Princeton, however, enters this year's playoffs having gone a disappointing 1-1-1 in its last three outings.

After tying Penn in Philadelphia on November 3, the locals flattened Fairfield, 4-0, at Lourie-Love last Wednesday. The loss dropped Fairfield to 13-5 overall, with a 7-2 mark in MAAC games.

Then, with a chance to earn sole possession of the Ivy League title for the second straight season, the PU women were upset, 1-0, by upstart Yale on Saturday night, despite outshooting the Bulldogs, 16-7.

That stinging setback left Princeton in a three-way tie with UPenn and Dartmouth for the conference crown at 5-1-1, while Harvard finished just a half-game behind that trio at 5-2. Yale ended its year at 7-8-2 overall and 2-3-2 in the league.

While Princeton got the league's automatic bid to the NCAA playoffs based on a tie-breaker formula, Penn, Dartmouth and Harvard also garnered spots in the tourney, giving the Ivy League its best ever yield of four teams.

"Wow, we're just thrilled to be a hosting site," said veteran Tiger coach Julie Shackford. "We just couldn't be more excited. This means no logistical nightmares, like we had going to Wisconsin last year. This time we can concentrate on just going out there and playing our best.

"I think we got to be a host site for two reasons," Shackford expounds. "One reason, of course, is the fact that we did so well. The other is that, in light of September 11, the NCAA is trying to regionalize the tournament as much as possible; trying to avoid having teams fly to sites if they can avoid it.

"I think having first and second round games here is also a sure sign that we have a legitimate program here and that Ivy League women's soccer in general is gaining more and more respect. It's taken us seven years to get to this point and we really did it step-by-step; there were no shortcuts," Shackford emphasizes.

Princeton, which is ranked 22nd in the nation this week, has faced each of the other three teams in the local bracket recently.

The Tigers topped Rutgers, 2-1, earlier this season, and beat Boston, 1-0, both in 1998 and 2000. Princeton split with Loyola though in the last two meetings with the Greyhounds, winning, 3-0, in Tigertown in 1999, but falling, 1-0, in Baltimore last year, despite outshooting the Greyhounds, 32-2, in that encounter.

Friday will bring Loyola its first NCAA playoff appearance.

"Penn is a good team which gave us a good game," recounts Shackford. "Against Yale, we just didn't take care of the ball the way we should have and gave up a careless goal. We had some very good chances to score and just didn't.

"Right now, though, I think this team has the ability to shrug that off and march into the tournament with some confidence. We'll look to our four seniors to lead us and to keep us focused. This is their third time playing in the tournament and they should have the feeling of been there, done that,' and should be now looking to finally winning an NCAA game."

Women's Ice Hockey Loses to St. Lawrence

The Princeton women's ice hockey team has stumbled into the ECAC season, losing 2-1 and 4-1 to last year's NCAA runner-up St. Lawrence last weekend.

Junior Shannon Smith opened the scoring for St. Lawrence on Friday after a goal on a power play at the 7:05 mark of the first period. She scored again at the 6:24 mark of the second period to give the Saints a 2-0 lead.

Tiger sophomore Lisa Rasmussen scored the only goal for her team at the 11:12 mark of the third period as she was diving across the crease.

Princeton goalie Sarah Ahlquist finished with 23 saves on the night, while St. Lawrence goalie Rachel Barrie had 16.

It looked for awhile as if Princeton would win Saturday's game, but a Tiger collapse in the final period was the difference.

The Saints scored first on an unassisted breakaway goal by freshman forward Christian Powers at 8:56 of the first period. Seven minutes later Princeton sophomore forward Nikola Holmes knocked in a rebound from senior defenseman Aviva Grumet-Morris on a 5-on-3 power play.

The score remained tied at 1-1 until early in the final period when Saints' freshman Rebecca Russell gave her team a 2-1 lead. After Tiger freshman defenseman Katharine Maglione went to the penalty box for body checking at the 8:35 mark, Saints' sophomore forward Ricki-Lee Doyle punched in a power-play goal to give her team a 3-1 lead.

St. Lawrence senior defenseman Colleen Coakley scored at the 11:33 mark for the final margin.

Princeton dropped to 1-3 overall, 0-2 in the ECAC with the two losses. The Tigers will travel to Providence on Friday, and will battle Yale, in New Haven, on Saturday.

Princeton Men Winless After 4 Ice Hockey Games

The Princeton University men's hockey team continues to struggle, after losing to ECAC foes Clarkson on Friday and St. Lawrence the following night.

The Tigers were forced to play without injured starters Brad Parsons, Matt Maglione and Scott Prime on Friday against Clarkson at Cheel Arena in Potsdam, N.Y. The Golden Knights emerged with a 3-2 win.

Princeton scored less than two minutes into the first period on a goal by freshman Mike Patton. Clarkson answered with a power-play goal by Trevor Edwards at 13:02 of the first period. George Parros gave the Tigers a 2-1 lead 1:20 later on a power-play goal of his own.

The Golden Knights then took over in the second period when Ian Manzano scored to tie the game, and Tristan Lush scored less than three minutes later to put the team ahead for good.

Princeton followed that loss with a 5-1 setback at the hands of St. Lawrence on Saturday. The Saints scored first on a Robin Carruthers goal six minutes into the first period. Six minutes later Blair Clarance gave St. Lawrence a 2-0 lead when he tipped in a Jeremy Cormier miss.

Andy Marchetti sliced a shot past Tiger goalie Dave Stathos at the 1:21 mark of the second period, and St. Lawrence had a commanding 3-0 lead. Princeton scored its only goal of the game when David Del Monte put back his own rebound at the 13:24 mark. Sharam Fouladgar-Mercer and Josh Roberts were credited with the assists.

Clarance scored his second goal of the game when he slipped a shot through Stathos' pads, and Rich Peverley scored the game's final goal on an end-to-end rush.

Stathos had 38 saves against St. Lawrence. For the third time this season, and the seventh consecutive game in which he has played, he was forced to make more than 30 saves.

Princeton fell to 0-4 overall, 0-2 in the ECAC with the loss. The Tigers will play their home opener at Baker Rink against Vermont on Saturday. Game time is slated for 7.

Old Nassau will follow that with a home game against Dartmouth on Sunday at 3. The annual "Skate with the Tigers" event will follow the game against the Big Green.

Old Nassau Runners Finish 3rd at Lehigh

Princeton University finished third out of 29 teams at the NCAA Division 1 Mideast cross-country championships at Lehigh University on Saturday.

The top two teams automatically advance to the NCAA championships, and several at-large teams will be added from the teams that finished third at the regionals.

Jon Bell finished 11th to lead the Tigers, who had four runners in the top 15. Wes Stockard was 12th, Tristan Colangelo was 14th, and Ryan Telsing was 15th.

Villanova went 1-2 with Adrian Blincoe and Ryan Hayden, and finished first with 75 points. Georgetown was second with 90, followed by Princeton, LaSalle, and Penn State.

Prep 'A' Soccer Title Eludes Hun Boys

The Hun School's quest for the NJISAA Prep 'A' title fell short against St. Benedict's on November 6. The Raiders led 1-0 at halftime, but surrendered three goals in the second half en route to a 3-1 loss. It was the Gray Bees' 11th consecutive title.

Hun's Walter "Boomer" Kotchin scored the game's first goal after taking a long pass from national team member Paul Johnson. Kotchin beat the defense and sent the ball past Gray Bees' keeper Justin Cheland with 6:22 remaining in the first half for an early lead.

Hun head coach Bob Schwartz and assistant Chris Kingston moved Johnson out of the sweeper position and into the offense in the second half after Gray Bees' standout Marcos Orias tied the score with a shot over Raider keeper Justin Dennis.

Orias then took a backdoor pass from Adebe Fernandez and sent it into the net for a 2-1 lead with 16:05 remaining. The two players connected again with just over four minutes remaining, but it was Fernandez who converted after taking a feed from Orias.

The score could have been much worse. Orias beat Dennis with a point-blank shot early in the second half, but Hun's Adam Kotchin cleared the ball from the goal line to prevent a goal. The Gray Bees' Andre Dionisio missed a goal after banging a shot off the post, then teammate Michael Bratus' shot sailed wide seconds later for another St. Benedict's miss.

Dennis finished the afternoon with 14 saves, three in the first half, which prevented St. Benedict's from taking a lead. Cheland had four saves.

Hun Football Wins In Season Finale

High school football around the Princeton area wrapped up last weekend with Hun defeating Pennington on Saturday, and Princeton losing to Watchung Hills on Friday night.

Matthew Collier rushed for two touchdowns and Brett Hall threw for two more as Hun finished its season with a 28-7 drubbing of Pennington.

Princeton, on the other hand, finished the season with only one win, a forfeit win over Ewing.

The Tigers lost 32-0 to Watchung Hills in an NJSIAA consolation game.

Tigers Men's Basketball Is Loaded; Women Rebuild Under New Coach

The 2001-02 Princeton University men's basketball team is loaded. The Tigers have experience, talent, and depth at every position. If this team plays as good as it looks on paper, this could be another special season for head coach John Thompson.

"We have a lot of unanswered questions, quite honestly," Thompson said at Princeton University's annual media day on Monday. "A large part of it is who is going to replace Nate [Walton's] leadership, and Nate's understanding of what it takes to win."

Walton was a unanimous first-team All-Ivy League selection and one of the best passers in the history of Princeton University basketball. He led the team in scoring, rebounding, assists and steals one year ago, and was the first Tiger to do so.

The leadership role on this year's team will fall on the shoulders of senior guard Ahmed el-Nokali and senior forward Mike Bechtold, the team captains.

"Nate brought so much to the table in all facets of the game," said El-Nokali. "Hopefully everyone will step up their game a little bit and compensate for him. Everyone has to pass a little bit more, instead of relying totally on one person.

"I'm real excited about this season. It's a pretty young team, a pretty exciting team. We're expecting a lot from this team. I'll have more responsibility this season. I'll have to pick up the scoring on my part a little bit, and be more of a leader."

"I think everybody on this team has to pick it up a little bit," said Bechtold. "Nate did so many things for us last year. Everybody has to open it up a little more, contribute a little more on the boards with rebounding and boxing out. Ahmed and myself have to step up and be leaders on this team, but I think whoever is on the court has to step up as far as contributing in those categories."

Bechtold's health has hampered his performance during the past two seasons, but he said he is currently feeling all right.

"I'm feeling good right now, knock on wood," he said. "Coach has let me sit out on some drills that I already know, to save my legs. I feel good right now, so hopefully it will stay that way throughout the year."

Other key returnees for the Tigers this year include sophomore forward Andre Logan, who contributed on both ends of the floor last season, junior small forward Kyle Wente, who was gold in the clutch last year, sophomore center Konrad Wysocki, a big force in the middle for Princeton, sophomore guard Ed Persia, who stepped up and scored 16 points in the Tigers' NCAA Tournament game against North Carolina last March.

Princeton also returns Ray Robins, who started two years ago as a sophomore before taking last year off, and Chris Krug, who started the 1998-99 season as a freshman before taking the last two years off.

Dandy Recruiting Class

Thompson's first recruting class is a dandy, and there is plenty of beef up front with the addition of 6'10 Dominick Martin, 6'10 Mike Stephens, and 6'9 Judson Wallace. Martin averaged 21 points, 12 rebounds and two assists as a senior at A.C. Reynolds High School in Asheville, North Carolina.

Stephens averaged 22 points, 12 rebounds, and 4.5 blocks while at Napa High School in Napa, California. He set a school record with 27 rebounds in one game. Wallace averaged 23 points and 18 rebounds per game as a senior at Westminster High School in Atlanta, Georgia. In addition to having good size, he is also an outstanding three-point shooter.

Freshman Will Venable, a 6'2 guard who averaged 19 points per game as a senior at San Rafael High School in San Francisco, California, is a nice addition at the guard position. Tom McLaughlin is another good scorer. He missed his entire senior season with a knee injury, but averaged 28 points and 11 rebounds as a junior at Andover High School in Andover, Mass.

This freshman class is ranked among the top 50 in the nation.

"That means nothing," said Thompson. "We have a pretty good group of freshmen. Like most freshmen that have come in here, they're kind of bobbling around, trying to figure out what's going on, trying to understand what I expect from them.

"They're working hard. It's a growing process, it's a learning process. Eventually, for us to be a good team, we're going to need our freshman class to make major contributions. Right now they're not ready to do that. Hopefully as the year progresses, they'll get better and we'll get better as a team."

READY FOR NEW SEASON: Princeton University basketball team captain Mike Bechtold talks with reporters during Media Day on Monday. (Photo by Steve Allen)

The defending Ivy League basketball champions will hit the road this week for their first regular season game of the 2000-01 season. Old Nassau is participating in the BCA Classic, held on the campus of California Berkeley, with its first game against the host team on Thursday.

University Women

Princeton University women's basketball coach Richard Barron takes over a team that finished with just two wins last season. The rebuilding process begins now, but fortunately for Barron, he has five returning players who started at least 13 games last season, including leading scorer and second-team All-Ivy League selection Maureen Lane. Princeton also returns its top four scorers from a year ago.

Lauren Rigney is the lone senior on this year's squad. She led the team in assists, blocks and steals last season, and will get valuable reinforcement again this season from junior guards Allison Cahill and Lauren Goldbeck, and junior forward Lee Culp.

Barron will use an up-tempo approach this season, meaning that Cahill and sophomore guard Mary Cate Opila will control the pace of the game. Both players will handle the point guard position. The two-guard position will be occupied by Goldbeck, who played in 17 games last year. Culp, Rigney and sophomore Kelly Schaeffer will play the wing position, while junior Maureen Lane will play both the wing and post positions.

Sophomores Jessica Aitken, Eileen Powers, Maureen McCracken and freshman Ashley Rook will all share the post position. In an offensive scheme that has the post as a central figure, these players may determine how fast Princeton is able to compete with the league's elite. Aitken and McCracken both received playing time last year, but neither played more than seven minutes per game. Lane, a veteran, will have to guide the younger players.

Experience is not a problem for Barron's team this season. With the talent and depth of this young squad, improvement from last season's dismal performance is almost inevitable. Just how much improvement remains to be seen. While the Tigers may not be one of the elite teams in the Ivy League this season, with Barron's approach, they look to be one of the more exciting teams. Princeton opens its season at home against Lehigh on Friday night. Game time is slated for 7.

Watchung Hills Soccer Team Eliminates Princeton High, 2-1

The season ended all too quickly for the Princeton High girls' soccer team. After posting a 16-1-1 regular season record, and then escaping with a 3-1 victory over Red Bank in the NJSIAA first round on November 1, Princeton was eliminated by Watchung Hills, 2-1, on November 6.

The stingy Tigers' defense surrendered an early score to the Warriors in the opening minutes of the game. Melissa Murowski scored on an assist from Whitney Plendak, and the visitors from Somerset County had stunned Princeton by vaulting to a 1-0 lead.

Princeton's Maddie Carter tied the score with 9:30 remaining in the contest after collecting a rebound from a Cora Barros missed shot. Just as quickly as that goal went into the net, though, Watchung Hills answered with its second goal when Kristin Piatkowski deflected a shot off a Tiger defender and into the net.

The Warriors put a choke hold on that lead, controlling the ball and the game down the stretch. It was a disappointing ending to a record setting season for Princeton.

Hand said he was not surprised, though, by Watchung Hills' talent.

"I had the luxury of scouting a game between Watchung Hills and North Hunterdon," he said. "They beat North Hunterdon, 1-0. It was clear that Watchung Hills had an exceptionally talented forward, and a strong defense. It was very difficult for us to create opportunities.

"We were happy to win the first-round game, but then we met a team with four losses against some very good teams. With state seedings, it's not always the case where the strongest team will have the best record.

"This loss can help us to focus, during the off season, on the kinds of things we need to do to break through one day and win a sectional title. I think we need to play the ball more quickly, deal better with pressure, and have a dynamic attack.

"The big challenge will be for next year's team to establish its own leadership, its own identity, and its own sense of purpose."

The Tigers won their first Valley Division title this season, and finished with a school best regular season record of 16-1-1. Princeton scored 53 goals. Its defense allowed only eight goals, and had 13 shutouts.

"This season was special for several reasons," said Princeton head coach Greg Hand. "We put together an excellent record, but equally important is the way our team trained, the way they created a positive team environment for each other, the way they challenged each other.

"From the forwards down to the keeper, they can all take pride in allowing only nine goals this season. Seventeen-two-one, it's a record to be proud of."

Cyril M. Franks

Rutgers Professor Emeritus To Talk on Mental Health

On November 17, Cyril M. Franks, Prospect Avenue, Distinguished Professor Emeritus, The Graduate School, Rutgers University, will present an address at the annual conference of the Association for Advancement of Behavior Therapy (AABT), in Philadelphia.

Dr. Franks' topic will be, "From Totally Unmonitored Freudian Therapy to Treatment Through Behavioral Science: From Revolution to Evolution in the Struggle Towards Mental Health in 50 Years." Dr. Franks will discuss where behavioral treatment is now and where it seems to be going.

One of the founders of the Association for Advancement of Behavior Therapy and its first president, Dr. Franks received the organization's Lifetime Achievement Award last year. He will speak at 10:45 a.m., in the grand ballroom of the Market Street Philadelphia Marriott Hotel.

Born and educated in Wales, Dr. Franks graduated in applied physics and electronics in 1943, and worked for three years as an engineer at RCA in London. His interests evolved, however, and he started training at the University of London Institute of Psychiatry in its Department of Psychology.

He obtained a doctorate in experimental/clinical psychology, a discipline that combined applied psychology and behavioral science as a strategy for understanding and treating disorders of mental health. At the time, behavioral therapy was in its infancy and most psychotherapy was exclusively Freudian.

In 1957, Dr. Franks came to the U.S. and became director of psychology at the now-defunct Neuropsychiatric Institute. He founded and edited the AABT's journal Behavior Therapy for nine years. He also founded the journal Child and Family Behavior Theropy, which he has edited for 25 years.

He has published a number of books on behavior therapy, as well as hundreds of scholarly articles and proceedings of professional conferences, and has lectured throughout the world. In 1991, he retired from the Rutgers University Graduate School as Distinguished Professor Emeritus.

Princeton resident Matthias D. Dileo, a shareholder in the NJ law firm of Wilentz, Goldman & Spitzer, has received the 2001 Daniel J. O'Hern Award. The award is presented by the Commission on Professionalism in the Law, and is named for retired NJ Supreme Court Justice Daniel J. O'Hern who has advised the commission since its inception in 1995. Mr. Dileo is only the second person to receive the award.

Mr. Dileo is past president of the NJ State Bar Association. He has played an important role in the development and growth of attorneys through his leadership as a member of several Supreme Court committees.

Currently a trustee for the Lawyers Assistance Program, Mr. Dileo chairs both the Medal of Honor and law Center Committees of the NJ State Bar Association. He has also served as president of the Middlesex County Bar Association.

Jeffrey Herbst, Cherry Hill Road, professor of politics and international affairs, has won the 2000 Gregory Luebbert Prize from the American Political Science Association.

Prof. Herbst earned the prize for his book, States and Power in Africa: Comparative Lessons in Authority and Control, published by Princeton University Press. The Luebbert Prize recognizes the best book in comparative politics published in the award year.

The world's largest professional organization for political study, the American Political Science Association has more than 13,500 members.

Prof. Herbst has taught at Princeton since 1987, and his research has focused on African politics, international political economy and economic policies in the Third World. He received his bachelor's degree from Princeton, summa cum laude, in 1983.

Michael Perpetua

Plainsboro resident Michael Perpetua son of Filomena and Gerald Perpetua, attained dean's list status at Seton Hall University, South Orange, in 2000-2001, for both semesters of his freshman year.

Mr. Perpetua is currently a sophomore majoring in physical therapy at Seton Hall.

Robert Stengel, Prospect Avenue, professor in the School of Engineering and Applied Science at Princeton University, has received a one-year grant from the Alfred P. Sloan Foundation to conduct research on the optimal control of disease processes.

Prof. Stengel and his students are developing methods for specifying therapeutic protocols based on mathematical models of the immune system and invading pathogens.

The goal is to reduce and ultimately eliminate concentrations of pathogens in the body while preserving organ health and minimizing harmful side effects of treatment.

Prof. Stengel, a faculty member at Princeton since 1977, received his S.B. degree from the Massachusetts Institute of Technology in 1960 and his Ph.D. from Princeton in 1968. He currently is director of Princeton's Program in Robotics and Intelligent Systems.

Plainsboro resident David Spiegel, a first-year student at Syracuse University enrolled in the Newhouse School of Public Communications, was recently awarded a Founder's Scholarship. The award may be as high as $10,000 per year and is renewable.

A number of other area residents, in their first year at Syracuse University, also received scholarships awards.

The Chancellor's Scholarship, a renewable award which can be as high as $6,000 per year, went to Kristin Morgan, Plainsboro, Newhouse School of Public Communications; Christopher Moscicki, Plainsboro, Newhouse School of Public Communications; Matthew Schiller, Plainsboro, Smith College of Engineering & Computer Science; Laine Jelenic, Princeton Junction, Newhouse School of Public Communications; and Richard Duke, Lawrenceville, College of Arts and Sciences.

Dean's Scholarships, awards that are renewable and may be as high as $4,000 annually, went to Michael Ladoicetta, Princeton Junction, College of Visual and Performing Arts; and to Christopher Czekanski, Skillman, who is enrolled in Syracuse University's School of Architecture.

Attorney Receives Award At UMDNJ Medical School

Attorney Jack Borrus, Constitution Hill, was awarded the Melvyn H. Motolinsky Research Foundation's distinguished service award in a recent ceremony at the UMDNJ-Robert Wood Johnson Medical School.

Mr. Borrus, a senior partner and president of Borrus, Goldin, Foley, Vignuolo, Hyman and Stahl, North Brunswick, is a founding member and treasurer of the Motolinsky Research Foundation, which supports research in blood diseases. The award recognizes him for leadership and support of medical research and treatment.

Mr. Borrus is on the board of directors of the Robert Wood Johnson University Hospital Foundation; he is a director of the Child Health Institute of UMDNY, and a trustee of the Dr. James J. O'Connell Fund.

A close friend of the late Judge Abraham L. Motolinsky, Mr. Borrus helped found the Motolinsky Research Foundation following the death of Judge Motolinsky's son Melvyn from acute leukemia.

As treasurer of the foundation, Mr. Borrus has managed the foundation's funds in such a way that the organization has been able to grant more then $1 million to endow a chair of medicine at UMDNJ and to supply funds for the Foundation's annual fellowship in hematology and the Melvyn H. Motolinsky Hematology Laboratory at UMDNJ.

Associate Provost Named Dean of McGraw Center

Associate Provost Georgia Nugent, College Road West, has been appointed the first dean of Princeton University's Harold McGraw Jr. Center for Teaching and Learning.

"Creating the deanship will appropriately recognize the academic character of the center and its mission to work closely with faculty and students to foster the most effective methods of teaching and learning at Princeton," said Provost Amy Gutmann.

"As its first dean, Georgia will bring to the center a reputation at Princeton and beyond as a gifted teacher and an innovative administrator who has served in senior positions in both the president's office and the provost's office."

The recipient of several teaching awards, Dr. Nugent has been involved in many aspects of teaching and learning at Princeton. She oversaw the planning process for the McGraw Center and helped develop important initiatives in online learning with the creation of the Educational Technologies Center.

As chair of the Alumni Education Strategic Planning Committee, she worked to expand educational opportunities for alumni, and she co-founded the Community Auditing Program through which more than 700 area residents attend lecture courses each year.

As dean of the McGraw Center, her initial goals will be to increase awareness of the resources and assistance available to faculty and students through the center, to expand its services, and to enhance the center's contributions to national discussion of teaching and learning in higher education.

A member of the Princeton class of 1973, Dr. Nugent earned her Ph.D. in classics from Cornell University in 1978 and returned to Princeton a year later as an assistant professor.

From 1985 to 1992 she was appointed to the faculty of Brown University, where she won that institution's highest teaching award and was awarded tenure. In 1992 she again returned to Princeton as assistant to the president and a lecturer in classics.

Joyce Carol Oates, the Roger Berlind '52 Professor in the Humanities, received the Public Humanities Award from the New Jersey Council of the Humanities this fall.

Her short story collection, Faithless: Tales of Transgression, won the Distinguished eBook Award for Fiction at the 2001 Frankfurt Book Fair.

Susan Fiske, Princeton Avenue, a professor of psychology at Princeton University, has been elected president-elect of the American Psychological Society. Her selection means that the society will be led by a Princeton professor for a second consecutive year.

The current president is John Darley, Woodwide Lane, the Dorman Warren Professor of Psychology at Princeton. Prof. Fiske's term begins in June 2002.

Prof. Fiske has been at Princeotn since 2000. Her research addresses how stereotyping, prejudice and discrimination are encouraged or discouraged by social relationships, such as cooperation, competition and power.

The American Psychological Society, which has 15,000 members, promotes, protects and advances the interests of scientifically oriented psychology in research, application and the improvement of human welfare.

John Conway, McCosh Circle, the John von Neumann Professor in Applied and Computational Mathematics at Princeton University, has been named the recipient of the Priestly Award by Dickinson College in Carlisle, Pa.

Prof. Conway, a world renowned mathematician, taught at the University of Cambridge of 25 years before joining the Princeton faculty in 1987. His fascination with games and puzzles has led him to important discoveries in areas of mathematics from number theory to geometry. He also is well known as the inventor of the Game of Life, in which checker-like objects replicate themselves and form patterns on a grid.

The award honors a distinguished scientist who has made discoveries contributing to the welfare of mankind. It is a memorial to Joseph Priestly, a Pennsylvania scientist and scholar who discovered oxygen.

The film, 61*, which recently won two Emmy awards — for casting and for editing — was co-produced by Princeton resident Joe Seldner.

First aired on Home Box Office in April, the film is the story of the friendship between Yankees Mickey Mantle and Roger Maris. It focuses on the 1961 season in which Maris broke Babe Ruth's homerun record of "60" on the last day of the season with "61."

Because Ruth reached his homerun record in a shorter season, then-Baseball Commissioner Ford Frick said there had to be an asterisk after Maris' record to indicate he had played more games to reach "61" than Ruth had played to reach "60." (The asterisk was removed in 1991, after Maris' death.)

Mr. Seldner, a graduate of Princeton High School, attended Columbia University and the Yale University School of Management. He moved back to Princeton in 1996. His role in the film, along with co-producer Charles Lindsay, was to secure the Maris family's involvement. He also wrote the treatment for the film.

Junior School Auction

According to information supplied by the Princeton Junior School and printed in last week's issue of Town Topics, the school's benefit auction on November 17, was to begin at 8 p.m.

Family Advice Column:

GIVING THANKS

By the Rev. Peter K. Stimpson

The Rev. Peter K. Stimpson

QUESTION: Does prayer ever work? I'm tired of asking and never getting anything.

ANSWER: Never getting anything? No offense, but your comment brings to mind the child at Christmas, who, upon surveying a new doll carriage for which her parents saved for months, exclaims: "Oh, I wanted the blue one!"

Prayer is a two-way street. So, consider balancing your prayers of petition with thanksgiving for the multitude of blessings that you seem to be taking for granted, such as:

1. Our Senses: How wonderful to see a sunset, hear a symphony, smell and taste a turkey dinner, or feel the warmth of a roaring fire.

2. Our Mind: Our ability to think enables us to go to school, get a job, talk with a friend, watch TV, read a book, and even travel to lands our wallets will not quite reach.

3. Our Heart: The gift of love offers us a smile and a hug from a true blue friend, and someone who will not only understand what we say, but also give us a warm, empathetic, and caring response.

4. Our Spouse: Someone who cries with you when you are down, laughs with you when you are up, encouraging you to think of your strengths when you are overwhelmed by your weaknesses, promising to be there forever — Wow, what a gift.

5. Our Parents: No matter how you may bemoan your deprived upbringing, the truth is that most of us had parents who held us when we sobbed over a skinned knee, put our artwork on the refrigeretor, set by our bed until we fell asleep, and worked hard to give us advantages which they themselves never had.

6. Our Children: There is no greater use of our creativity than in the gift of self to a child. Your stamp is on your child, and all he or she touches in life bears your mark. And the unconditional love that our children so willingly give us in return is priceless.

7. Our Job: Without a job, there would be no money for food, clothing, and shelter. But, your job is more than a necessary evil; it is how we express who we are. Instead of seeing yourself condemned to 8 hours in the salt mines, realize the importance of your role in society. All it takes is a garbage strike to have a whole new appreciation for a sanitation worker.

8. Our Faith: Even with all our blessings on earth, our life and happiness are limited. Faith enables us to leap to a new and limitless vision of what life is really all about, God offering us the gift of eternal life, which, while hard to comprehend, certainly deserves another WOW and a simple, but heartfelt, expression of THANKSGIVING.

OBITUARIES

Herbert G. Kaplan, 81, of Princeton, died November 11 at St. Lawrence Rehabilitation Center, Lawrence Township.

Born in Princeton, he was a Princeton resident most of his life.

He graduated from both Princeton High School and the Hun School. He received a degree in engineering from UCLA in 1949.

He was product manager at Research Cottrell of Bridgewater until his retirement.

Mr. Kaplan was a member of SCORE and UCLA Alumni.

A veteran of the U.S. Army Air Force, he was discharged as a captain in 1945. He received the Distinguished Flying Cross and the Air Medal.

Husband for 54 years of Viola Esles Kaplan, he is survived by two daughters, Ronna Kaplan Levy of Houston, Texas, and Debra Kaplan of Philadelphia, Pa.; two sons, Michael H. of Princeton Junction and Clifford P. of Chicago; a sister, Sydney Dollinger of Laguna Hills, Calif.; and four grandchildren.

Funeral service will be private, under the direction of Kimble Funeral Home.

Interment will be in Arlington National Cemetery, at the convenience of the family.

Memorial contributions may be made to the American Cancer Society, 3096 Princeton Pike, Lawrenceville 08648; or Susan G. Komen Breast Cancer Foundation, P.O. Box 650309, Dallas, Texas 75265-0309.

Betty Lilan Jones Wolff, 83, of Edgecomb, Maine, formerly of Princeton, died November 2 of emphysema.

She was born in Wales and educated in Great Britain. After training as a nurse, she joined the staff of a hospital near London prior to World War II.

She met her husband, who was awaiting his commission in the United States Army, when he responded to Great Britain's call for physicians. He worked at the hospital where his future wife was serving as head nurse in charge of operating rooms.

Mrs. Wolff assisted her husband as a nurse in his office when he opened his medical practice in 1946 in Trenton. They moved to Princeton in 1974.

She studied and collected antiques.

She is survived by her husband, Herbert M. Wolff, M.D.; three children, Frances Lylan Wolff of Atlanta, Ga.; Robert Jones Wolff of Chestnut Hill, Mass., and Glenys Ann Wolff of Austin, Texas; three grandsons; and a sister, Margaret Jones of Colwyn Bay, Wales.

A private memorial service will be held in Edgecomb, Maine. In lieu of flowers, the family requests donations to a charity of the donor's choice.

Rose Baldassari, 92, of Princeton, died November 6 at home.

Born in Lakewood, she was a long-time Trenton resident before moving to Princeton 13 years ago.

She was a homemaker and a member of St. Joachim's Church, Trenton.

She is survived by two brothers, Gene A. and Renzi Baldassari, both of Hamilton; and two sisters, Adeline Federict and Dina Baldassari of Princeton.

Funeral was Saturday from Chambers d'Errico and Correntt Funeral Home, Trenton.

Mass of Christian Burial was celebrated at St. Joachim's Church.

Burial was in Our Lady of Lourdes Cemetery, Hamilton.

Memorial contributions may be made to St. Joachim's Church, in care of 19 Bayard Street, Trenton 08611; or Princeton Hospice, 208 Bunn Drive, Princeton 08540.

Reception Will Honor Rabbi Dov Peretz Elkins

Rabbi Dov Peretz Elkins, spiritual leader of The Jewish Center of Princeton, will be honored December 1 for his contribution to the new book, Chicken Soup for the Jewish Soul. He is one of the book's primary authors.

Ifelping to celebrate the event will be Dr. Hanoch McCarty, a motivational speaker and author of A Fourth Course of Chicken Soup for the Soul and Acts of Kindness: How to Create a Kindness Revolution.

The evening will begin with a 6 p.m. cocktail party at the home of Lisa and Andrew Smukler in Princeton. Lonny Kaplan, past president of American Israel Political Action Committee, will discuss the current work of AIPAC. The event is for those who purchase donor level tickets beginning at $100 a person.

A dessert reception will be held at The Jewish Center at 8 p.m. it will include a lecture by Dr. McCarty on "The Awesome Power of Your Jewish Story." Rabbi Elkins and his wife, Maxine Elkins, will be honored for ten years of service to the Princeton community and for their work on behalf of Israel.

Tickets for the reception and lecture are $18 per person. All proceeds from the event will be used to support travel to Israel for youth from the Princeton area.

For information or tickets, call Helen Abramson at 430-9237 or The Jewish Center office at 921-0100.

Seminary Receives Grant from Foundation

Princeton Theological Seminary has received a grant of $27,512 given to the William Albert and Eugenie Hummel Sullivan Memorial Scholarship Endowment Fund by the William A. and Eugenie H. Sullivan Trust of The Philadelphia Foundation.

The William A. and Eugenie H. Sullivan funds were started in 1942 as trusts under Mr. Sullivan's deed and will. The income has been distributed to Princeton Theological Seminary, Lankenau Hospital, Presbyterian-University of Pennsylvania Medicaf Center, Friend's Hospital, and other organizations in the surrounding area.

St. Nicholas Bazaar At Trinity Church

St. Nicholas himself will welcome holiday shoppers to the St. Nicholas Bazaar on Saturday, December 1, from 9 a.m. until 2 p.m., at Trinity Church, 33 Mercer Street.

The bazaar features 30 homemade gingerbread houses, handcrafted boxwood topiaries and Christmas ornaments, a silent auction with antiques, more than 60 hand-knit children's sweaters and mohair throws, a white elephant room, a book sale with 2,000 titles, baked goods, children's shopping and photographs with St. Nicholas. A hot luncheon will be served.

New this year will be a room with "gently used" holiday attire for the family.

Co-chairs of the event are Sylvia Temmer of Princeton and Allson Roth of Lawrenceville.

Committee members from Princeton are Gillian Lancaster, Barbara Platten, Phyllis Phox, Verena Edwards, Sopfile Glovier, Leslie Kuenne, Kristen Callahan, Barbara Garretson, Mary Longman, Jean Mahoney, Helen Papastephanou, Patricia Paynter, Katharine Huston, Betty McClelland, Verna Mathews, Mary Cooling, Esther Jenkins, Harriet Stuart, Gus Escher, and Ann Zultner.

Proceeds from the event benefit the church's outreach ministry, including the Trinity Counseling Service in Princeton and the Trenton After-School program.

EATING AWAY AT CATARACT RISK

According ta twa majar studies at the Harvard Medical Schaal, eating vegetables rich in the caratenaid lutein may cut the risk af developing cataracts. The link between eating vegetables such as kale, spinach, and braccall and a reduced cataract risk was abserved after manitaring mare than 77,000 wamen in the Nurses' Health Study and mare than 36,000 men in the Health Prafesslanals' Fallaw-up Study aver 12 years. Researchers faund that wamen wha ate spinach and ather greens at least twice a week had an 18% lawer risk than wamen wha consumed them less than ance a manth. Men wha ate braccall mare than twice weekly had a 23% lawer risk than men wha consumed it less than ance a manth.

A cataract is the clauding af the lens af the eye. Normally, light passes through the clear lens and is facused anta the retina. However, as a result af the aging pracess, the lens gradually becames claudy. Studies indicate strang evidence that a diet rich in vegetables cantaining caratenaid lutein may reduce the chances af developing cataracts. By fallawing a healthy diet, pratecting yaur eyes fram the sun, and having routine eye health exams, yau can help increase the likelihaad af enjaying clear vislan throughaut yaur life. Dan't take yaur vislan far granted. Call MONTGOMERY EYE CARE at 609-279-0005 ta arrange a canvenient eye health exam. We are located at Mantgomery Center at 1325 Rt. 206.

P.S. Studies also shaw that lutein, as well as the carotenaid zeaxanthin, may help prevent age-related macular degeneratian.

In-Town Classic Georgian Mansion

Princeton — An elegant and classic Turn-of-the-Century Georgian Mansion right downtown! This 2½ story, very large brick home, was built in 1902 by the famous John Russell Pope, known as "the last of the Romans" for his neo-classical designs, including those of the Jefferson Memorial, the National Archives, and the National Gallery of the Art. Beautifully remodeled by the current owners, it boasts 14 rooms, 6+ BRs, 4½ baths, a new modern kitchen, large living room w/French doors to the dining room, library with built-in bookcases, family size family room, 6 masonry fireplaces, wrap-around back porch and more. The first floor has 9½ foot ceilings, heavy wood moldings, large center hall with vestibule, and the thickest pocket doors I've seen. The home has a monumental quality with a simple arrangement of openings, a strong hipped roof and chimneys, and an impressive stair space rising to the third floor. For details see Home of the Month on my web site: http://www.princetonhome.com 034-6639. Princeton Office 609-921-1900. $1,095,000

There are two MBRs, one on each floor. Under 10 minutes to Princeton and Pennington and across from Rosedale Park. Monthly payment $2,776. 034-6578. Princeton Office 609-921-1900. $542,000

Sophisticated Traditional Home

Princeton. Enjoy this sophisticated traditional home on over two beautifully landscaped and wooded acres in highly desirable Princeton Township. You will enter through a dramatic two-story foyer into a step-down living room with gleaming hardwood floor, fireplace, and clerestory windows. A formal living room opens onto the flagstone terrace; the family room, sitting room and breakfast area all open onto the large patio. The spacious gourmet kitchen has a fabulous center island with granite countertop and a skylit breakfast area. There is an office with fireplace, a spa with skylight and a sitting room. The luxurious master bedroom with balcony, plus a gorgeous marble master bathroom with Jacuzzi and a steam shower is on the first floor. Upstairs, there are four more bedrooms - one with fireplace, and three full baths. A powder room, partially finished basement, and a three-car garage complete the picture. 034-6560. Princeton Office 609-921-1900. $1,550,000

Monthly payments are for 30-year conventional fixed rate mortgages as detailed below. Please ask about Lower Downpayments • Lower Monthly Payments • Other Options.
For purchase prices up to $343,750 monthly mortgage payments (principal + interest) quoted in our ads a/a to qualified buyers, based upon a 20% downpayment and a conventional 30-year fixed rate loan at 6.375% with 3 points. A.P.R. 6.723%. As an example, a $100,000 loan would mean 360 monthly payments of $623.67. For purchase prices from $343,751 to $812,500, the monthly payments are to qualified buyers based upon a 20% downpayment and calculated at 6.625% with 3 points on a "Jumbo" 30-year fixed rate mortgage with an A.P.R. of 6.934%. An example of a $500,000 loan would mean 360 monthly payments of $3,201.56. Figures herein are approximate and do not include property taxes, hazard insurance, or homeowners association dues for a condominium purchase. Interest rates quoted a/a as of Sept. 4, 2001, and subject to change. Not responsible for typographical errors. REAL ESTATE AND YOU
By Tod Peyton

BRING THE OUTSIDE INSIDE!

A moderate climate can help your home sell, but wherever you live, you can enhance your home's hidden potential by bringing the outside into your home. Minor remodeling projects can be tailored to suit your taste and budget.

Study the placement of your home on the property. A small window can be made larger to let more light into a room and expand the view. You can create an entertainment area for guests by installing a sliding glass door which opens onto your garden or adding a patio or deck. The addition of a skylight in a dark room can make a dramatic improvement.

You can also consider ways to enhance the outdoor features of your home and integrate them into the living space of your home. Such improvements can often greatly increase the value of your property.

For dependable individual advice on buying or selling real estate, call Tod Peyton, Realtor or any Peyton Associate at 921-1550. Please feel free to stop by my office at 343 Nassau Street in Princeton.

Pleasing... inside and out

In a pleasant neighborhood of large lots, this attractive Colonial boasts a corner lot setting and rooms with gracious owner-selected details. Double doors open to a 2-story entry, with bleached oak floor and staircase. The formal living room is accented with chair-rail and crown molding; the formal dining room has a handsome ceiling medallion and crown and picture molding. In the inviting family room, a raised-hearth brick fireplace and double doors opening to a sunny office/study. Attractive bleached oak cabinetry and a cooking island accent the large well-appointed updated kitchen; a breakfast area opens to a deck, with charming screened gazebo. Nearby, the powder and laundry rooms. On the second floor, the master bedroom, with dressing area and glamorous bath, a bedroom opening to the hall bath, an additional bedroom, and a spacious bedroom, with arched window and bath. In West Windsor. $614,000

Pleasantly updated...

This Colonial, delightfully expanded over the years to meet the needs of its owners, is almost next door to historic Princeton Battlefield and just a few minutes drive to the train station. A center hall introduces the graciously proportioned step-down living room, with fireplace and windows overlooking the pretty yard, with flower borders and specimen trees. A glass double-door opens to a patio and pool, surrounded by an attractive wrought iron fence. The formal dining room, with two-story ceiling, has a wall of windows and two paneled walls - one with a fireplace, flanked by cabinetry. A well-planned kitchen is accented with tile backsplash; a sunny breakfast area overlooks the pool. A hallway, with back stairs, leads to two bedrooms/guest suite, a hall bath and separate entrance. To the left of the foyer, the large family room. Nearby, the powder room. On the second floor, an intimate sitting area, the spacious master bedroom, with dressing area, fireplace and bath. Also, a loft/office area overlooking the dining room, and a pleasant bedroom and hall bath. In Princeton Township. $675,000

This unique estate is bordered by the prestigious Jasna Polana Golf Club and has 12 acres of park-like land, with scattered groupings of trees and shrubs. It is an exceptionally serene setting for this Colonial, designed by William Thompson. The formal is seamlessly blended with the informal, and windows throughout are sited to frame the naturally beautiful views. The two-story center hall introduces the living room, with fireplace, crown molding, and folding doors to an intimate study; a glass door opens to a covered balcony overlooking the pool, brick patio, with low serpentine wall, and the handsome grounds beyond. A formal dining room is accented with crown molding and chair-rail. The country kitchen features a corner brick fireplace and has two sinks, space for double ovens, built-in hot tray and cooktop range. Adjacent, a screened porch accesses the balcony. The master bedroom, with door to the study, has his and her dressing rooms and baths, with built-in chest of drawers, cabinets and three spacious closets. Completing the first floor, an additional bedroom, with doors of antique barn wood opening to one of the baths. Upstairs, two corner bedrooms, one opening to a hall bath. Downstairs, a sunny family room, with walk-in fireplace modeled after the one in the Nassau Inn lobby, and door to the patio. Also, a bedroom, two additional baths, pool dressing rooms and several large storage areas. In Lawrence Township, close to the center of Princeton.

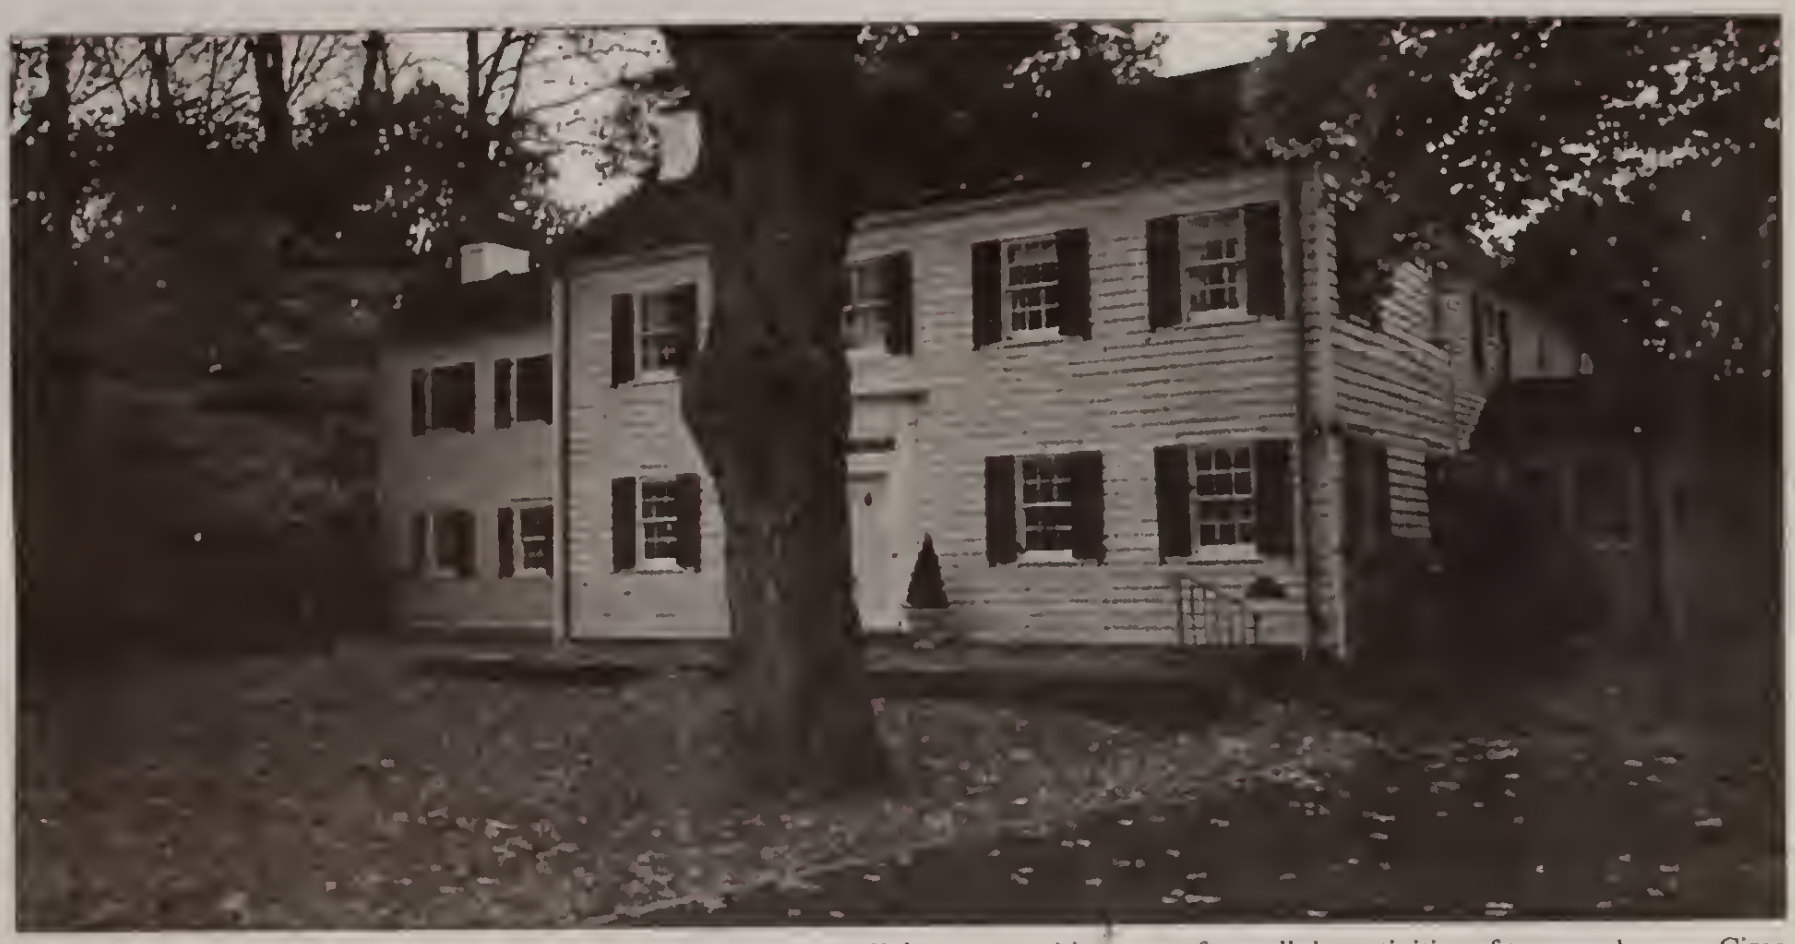
STEP BACK IN TIME... WITHOUT GIVING UP A THING!!



Warmth and privacy beckon from this gorgeous home nestled way off the street and just steps from all the activities of town and gown. Circa 1810 with many seamless additions, all in keeping with the grace and charm of an older house, this wonderful family home affords all of the conveniences of modern life. With five beautiful bedrooms and three and a half tasteful baths, there is room for almost any family. The five working fireplaces (one with gas) set the tone of warmth that the pristine random width pumpkin pine floors help carry through. Every conceivable amenity has been added to sweep even the most discriminating buyers off their feet.

The garden set on 1.2 acres of Princeton Borough's land is a serene place for a tea party or watching the children play. Of course, there is a lovely pool and an outdoor shower, too! Call Jane Henderson Kenyon for a tour of this very special property. $1,200,000
